The Editor's Page

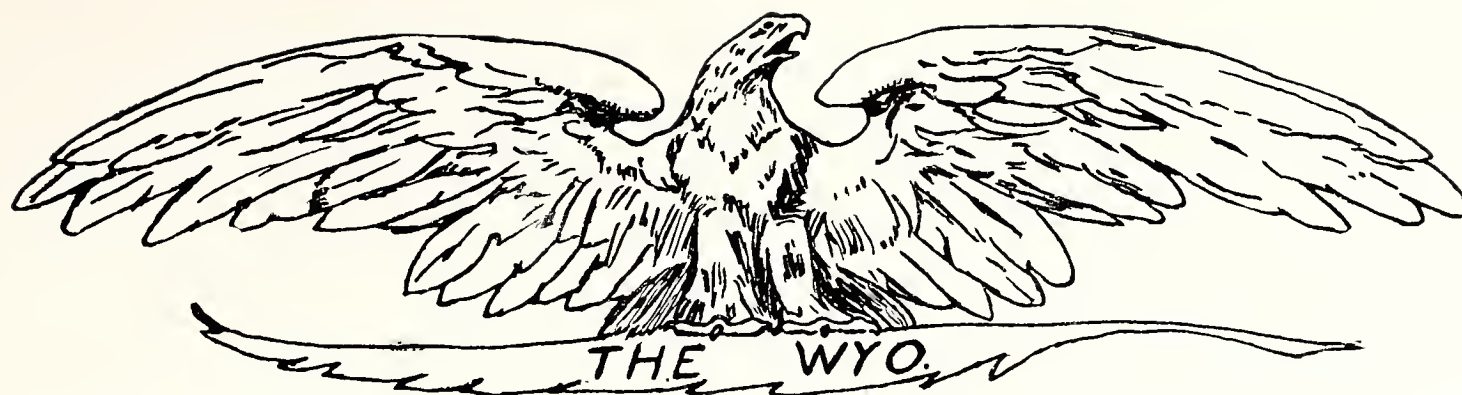

NCE more the task of editing THE WYO of the University of Wyoming is completed. It has demanded the most earnest efforts of the staff and we hope that, through these efforts, we have produced a book which will recall to you a few of the memories of "those college days".

The class of 1919 herewith presents you the tenth volume of THE WYO. and we hope that it will meet with your approval.

Thanks of the class are due those who have kindly helped us in the production of this WYO, to whom we are truly grateful.

THE EDITOR.

The Sophomore Class

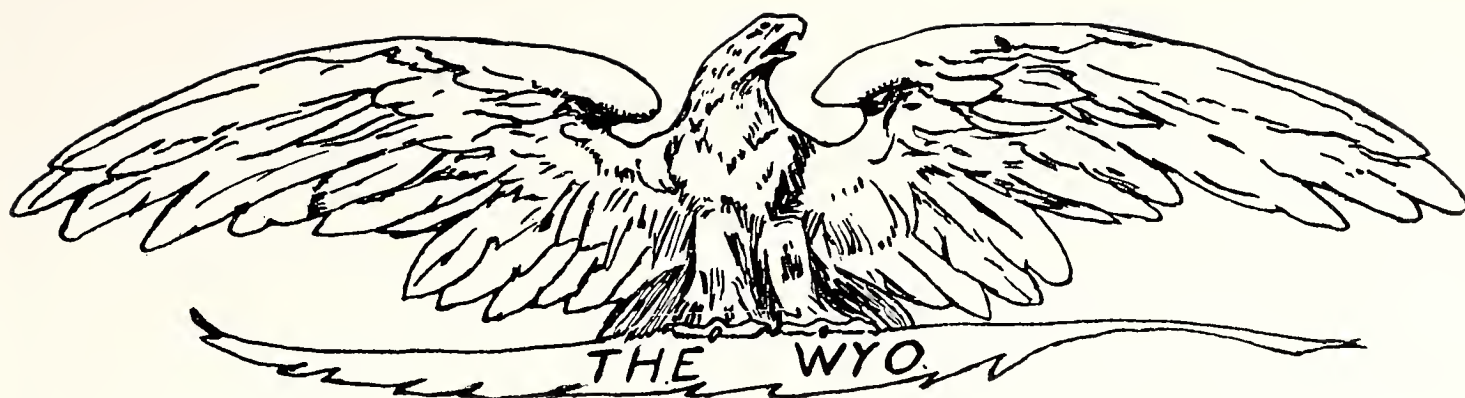

FROM the opening of the University in September the Sophomore Class has kept up the high standards for efficiency and "pep" which they established for themselves last year. The Frosh were properly initiated into the mysteries of college life; their W dance and class meetings were visited; their girls were adorned with 20's; their boys wore Freshmen caps; their colors were hung below ours on the flag pole. These served to keep the Frosh awake and arouse a class spirit within them.

The Sophomores are well represented in the various college activities. The boys put up a good game in the class basketball series and the girls' team were the champions of the University. We have a number in Quill Club, in Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. offices, and in the cast of the A. S. U. W. play. Our hard times dance in April is going to be the best ever. The University has no class that is livelier or more interested in all its activities or more loyal than that of the Sophomores.

The Freshman Class

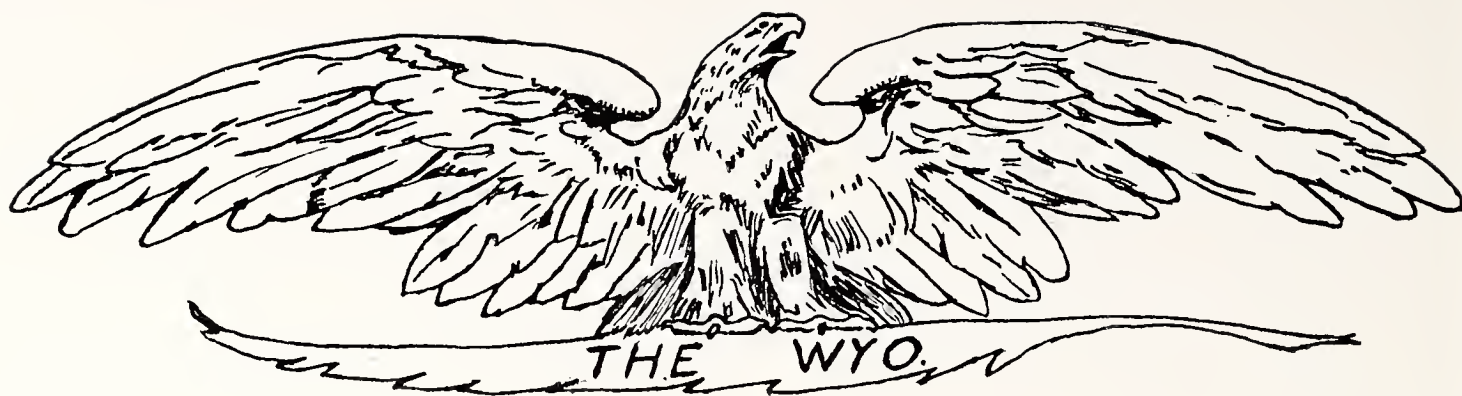

TWENTY-ONE!!!

WHAT does twenty-one stand for? Well, to be brief and to the point, it stands for the class which is to be U. W.'s crowning glory. We are convinced of this, for it has already done much that is praiseworthy. Its spirit is far greater than one might expect from its size. This spirit led its members to defy the Sophomores, and to whitewash the famous "W" when it chose and not at the appointed time. It was the same spirit which promoted the valiant struggle between Freshies and Sophs on the "Ag" building the day after "Whitewash" day. Our colors are black and gold, and everyone knows how well they look floating above the Sophomore "blue and gold". Our "Hop", too, was a great success and showed well for our splendid organization. Under the leadership of our President, Carol Whitmer, Secretary Robert Ingham, and Treasurer Milward Simpson, we have managed to have many good times and gain some honors. Our boys won the championship in basketball. Two of our girls are on the debating team and two have already made Quill Club. With such a start, everyone looks forward to great things from "twenty-one".

The College of Liberal Arts

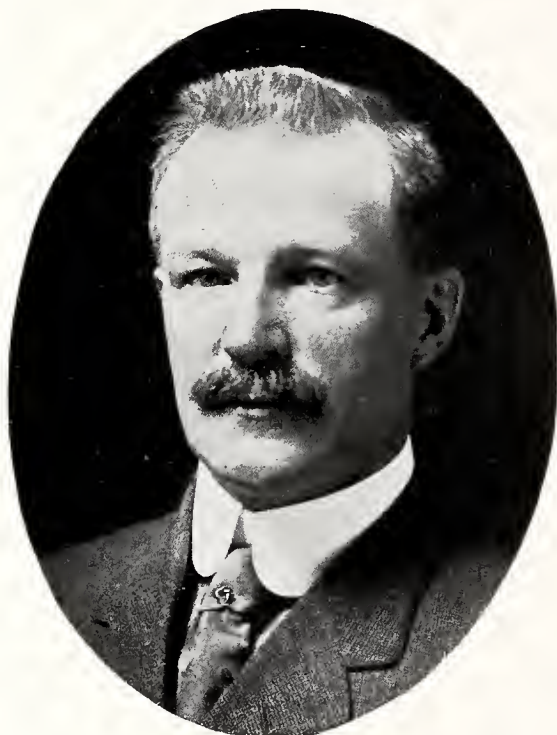

THE College of Liberal Arts is the oldest College of the University, and from it have sprung and to it have been added all the other Colleges and Departments that are mentioned in our University Catalogue. It is the center around which all the other Departments must continue to grow, if the University is to attain still higher fields of educational service. It is essential, therefore, that the College of Liberal Arts receive continued and increasing support, in order that its highest function may be realized. This function is to develop and cultivate men and women; as indispensable part of the work of education as to train farmers, teachers, stenographers, housekeepers, and engineers.

The term liberal means free, and studies are liberal or free in contrast with studies in which one is restrained by routine, or by the need of livelihood. Again, certain studies are free in the sense of making free or of increasing freedom. Ignorance is the greatest obstacle to freedom. It follows that a wide range of knowledge multiplies our freedom and increases the extent to which we may be said to do what we really wish rather than what circumstances dictate. Liberal education is a wide survey of the field of life, a broad outlook over all its manifest possibilities, so that we may choose our work in the presence of all the possibilities. It is the kind of education that helps us to choose our work freely, rather than the kind that fits us for our chosen work.

The period of liberal study may well be a period of desultory attention, of a sort of spiritual idling, when, according to the standards of efficiency, time is wasted; for the essential purpose of liberal studies is not to prepare us to succeed in the practice of a specific profession, as for instance law, but to help us to decide wisely and freely whether to aspire to such success. Consulting the University Catalogue does not help you to gain credit in the courses, but it plays an important part in your deciding what courses to take, and it assuredly shows you what courses there are to take, and whither they may lead you.

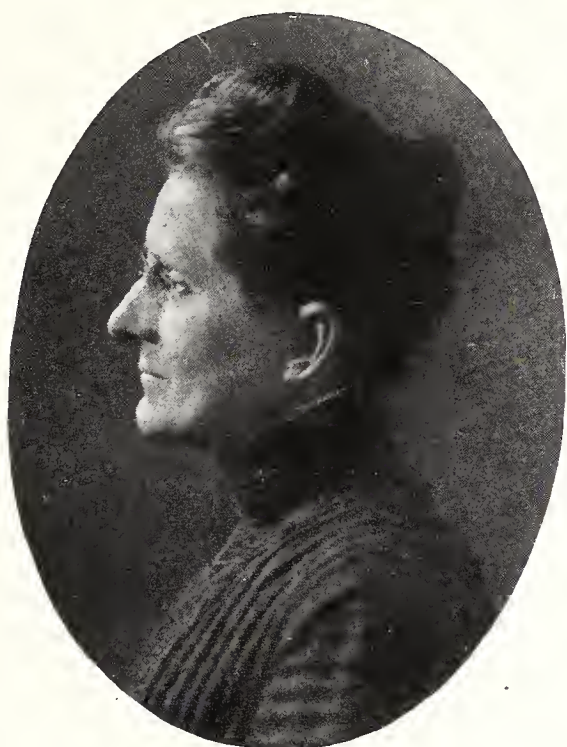

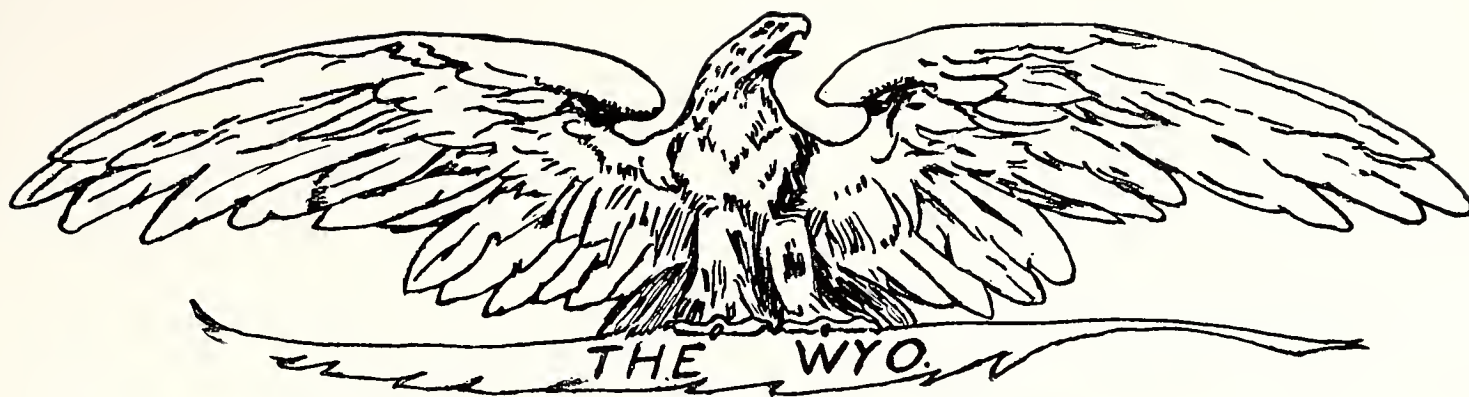

To profit most by liberal study, or to acquire that which is peculiarly valuable in it, we need freedom and openness of mind, quickness of response, toleration of the ancient and traditional, and an eager interest in the new and radical. A liberal education means, primarily, a retrospect of the past, an assimilation of the civilization of our age, and a wide acquaintance with the possibilities of life, in order that choice of vocation may be wise and free.

AGRICULTURE

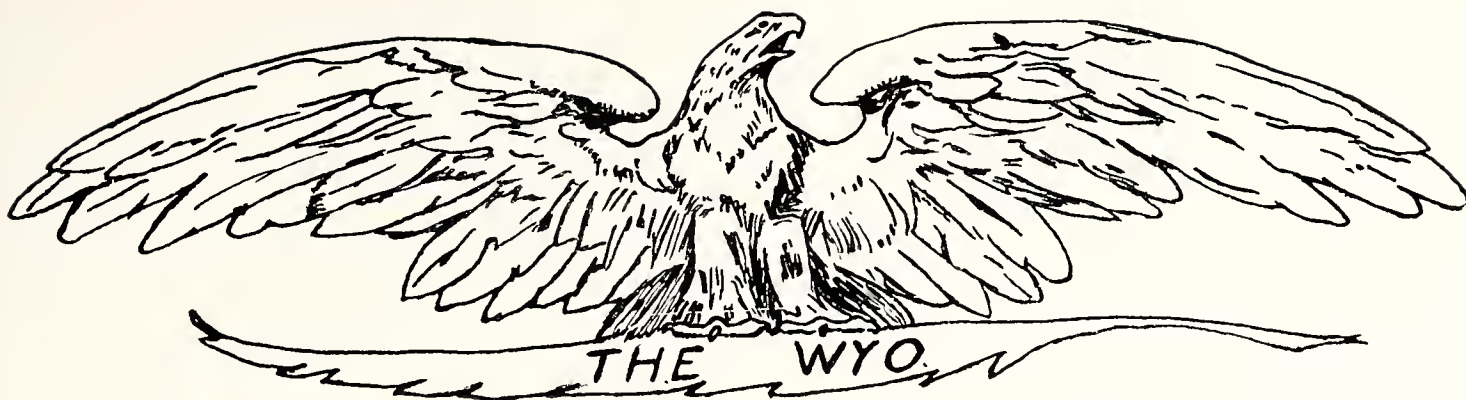

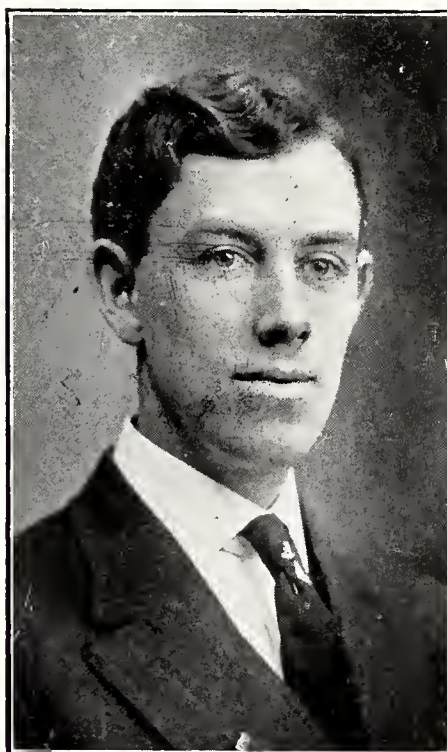

The College of Agriculture

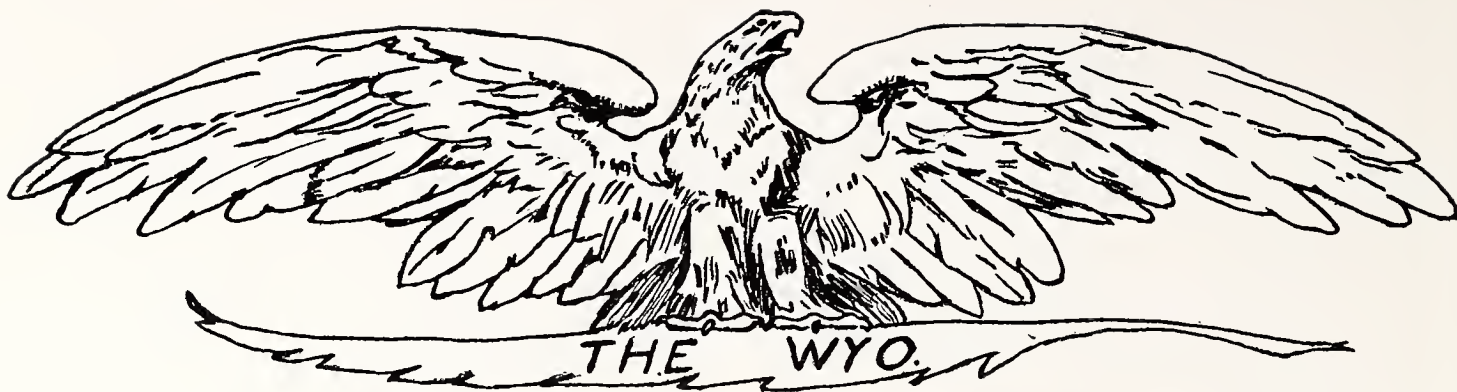

THE College of Agriculture consists of three well defined divisions or departments: the Agricultural College, the Experiment Station, and the Division of Extension, each playing an important part in the agricultural development of Wyoming. The Agricultural College trains students in the fundamental sciences. It lays a broad foundation for the agricultural students, knowing that "except on broad foundations specialization is utterly ridiculous". The agricultural courses are built for Wyoming students and Wyoming conditions. That they fit men for graduate work in other institutions is borne out by the records of many of our graduates. The Experiment Station is organized primarily for research work along lines that will be of value to the agricultural population of our state. Upon the Station devolves the duty of gathering the material from which the Agricultural College draws in developing men and women trained in agricultural lines. The Division of Extension carries to the state at large agricultural truths discovered in the class room, in the laboratory, and in the field. Through the extension workers, valuable information of all kinds is carried directly to the men and women on the farms and ranches, thus bringing to those who have not had the opportunity of attending college, the essential things they need in developing the agricultural possibilities of the state. The work of these three departments or divisions is closely interwoven. They succeed individually only as they pull together. Together they constitute the College of Agriculture, founded and fostered with the idea of placing the Science of Agriculture on the high plane it so justly deserves.

The College of Education

THE State of Wyoming needs from 400 to 500 new teachers and school administrators each year to take the place of those who leave the profession or who go to other states in search of greater opportunities. As the only institution in Wyoming of more than high school grade devoted to teacher training, the College of Education has an unusual responsibility. It is assuming this responsibility, so far as it can, through the preparation of: teachers for rural schools, for city elementary schools, for academic and vocational subjects in high schools; directors of normal training in high schools; rural and elementary supervisors; and high school principals and city superintendents. Its spirit is service to the state; its procedure is the development of a thorough, accurate scholarship in subject matter, supplemented by an understanding of how to adapt this subject matter to children and adolescents in order that they may possess increased power of living fully and effectively in a modern community.

DEPARTMENT OF ENGINEERING

Engineers Wanted!

THE WYO messages to young men:

T President Wilson: "There will be need for a larger number of persons expert in the various fields of applied science than ever before. Such persons will be needed both during the war and after its close. . . . I would particularly urge upon the young people who are leaving our high schools that as many of them as can do so avail themselves this year of the opportunities offered by the colleges and technical schools, to the end that the country may not lack an adequate supply of trained men and women."

Secretary of War Baker: "Let the young men of America devote themselves to the various branches of engineering education, so that when the war is over the call will not be in vain to young men who have had the training and have learned the lessons necessary to enable them quickly and rapidly to play a part in that great reconstruction enterprise."

THEIR SIGNIFICANCE:

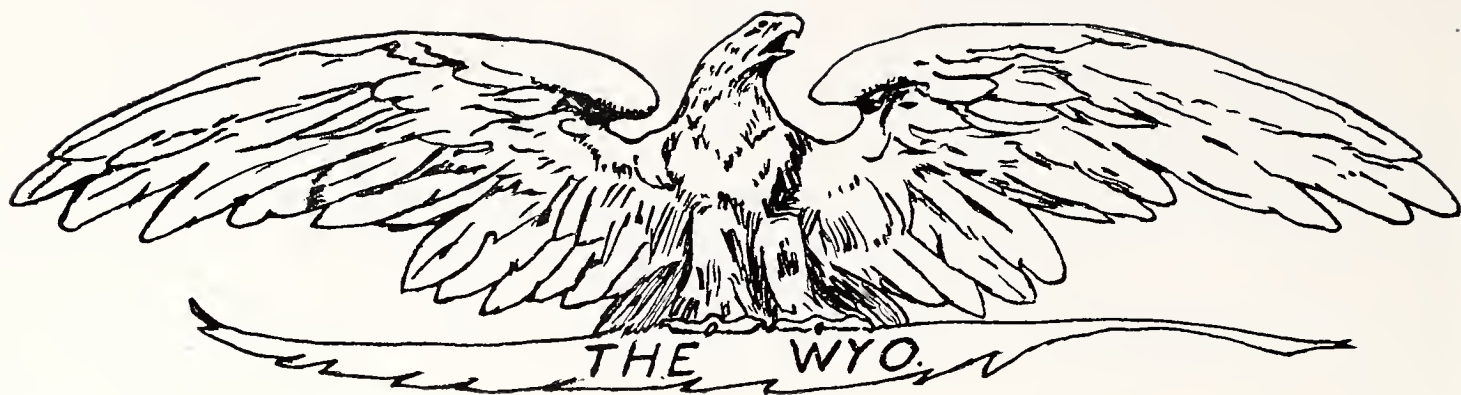

After the United States entered the world war it was soon apparent that the induction of students in engineering colleges into military service, through enlistment and the operation of the draft law, would seriously deplete the supply of trained engineers so necessary, both in carrying on the war and for the continued maintenance of our industrial strength.

When the war ends, the world, including our own country, will have to be reconstructed, and this is the work of the engineer. America and the world at large will need trained engineers in the immediate future as never before in history, and the supply is inadequate for the present emergency.

In recognition of this situation, the President and Secretary of War, with the Chief of Engineers of the United States Army and other government officials in authority, are urging that students now in engineering colleges should, as a patriotic duty, remain to finish their courses, and that the universities should do all they can, not only to retain such students, but to induce others to take up technical training.

So one of the significant developments in connection with engineering education is that provision has been made for allowing engineering students to continue their studies in college. As a means to this end, the Selective Service Regulations have been modified by inserting the following:

"Under such regulations as the Chief of Engineers may prescribe, a proportion of the students, as named by the school faculty, pursuing an engineering course in one of the approved technical engineering schools listed in the War Department may enlist in the Enlisted Reserve Corps of the Engineer Department and thereafter, upon presentation by the registrant to his local board of a certificate of enlistment, such certificate shall be filed with the questionnaire and the registrant shall be placed in Class 5 on the ground that he is in the military service of the United States."

WYOMING ENGINEERS AND THE WAR:

As our University is "one of the approved technical engineering schools listed in the War Department," it comes under the provisions of this regulation, and students accepted under it are distinctly in the service of the government by continuing their college work. Several students are now in this type of service.

There are over a dozen graduates and former students of engineering in the military service, some of them holding important commissions. One member of the faculty is on leave of absence in France as a Captain of Engineers.

The engineering departments themselves are giving special courses in preparation for war service. A course in military field engineering is being given, which all cadet officers are required to take, and a course for radio and buzzer operators is being given at the request of the United States Army, twenty-seven men having enrolled in the class.

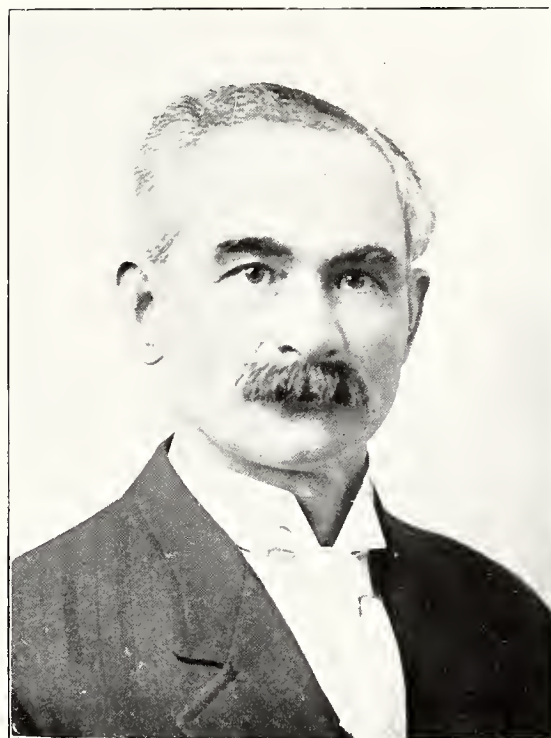

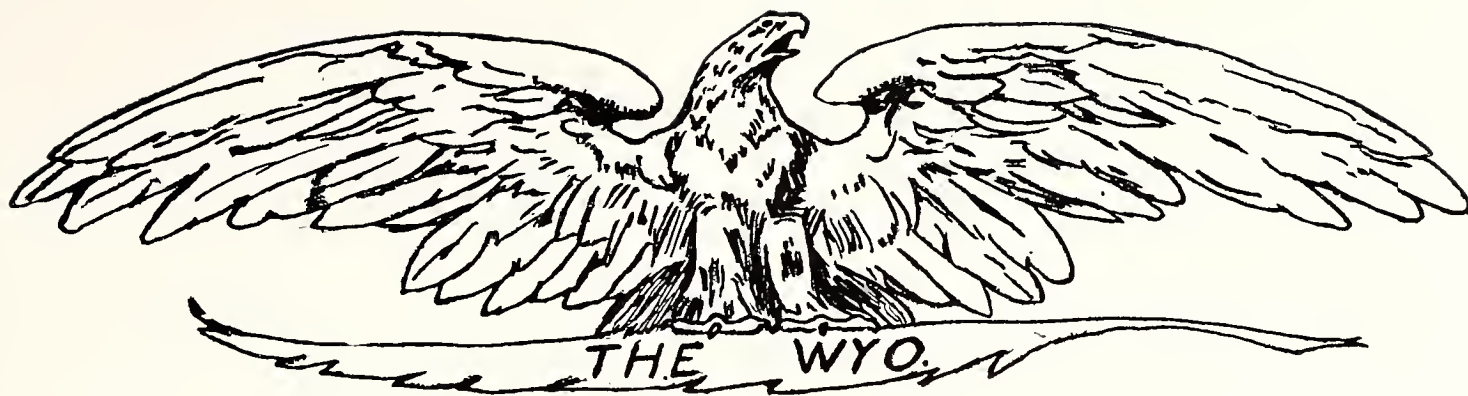

It has been stated that the University of Wyoming is one of the approved technical schools listed in the War Department. It is also in the list of approved schools for training acting ensigns for engineering duty in the Navy.

The Department of Commerce

SPEED! Speed! Speed! Speed in preparation has been the watchword of our nation for more than a year. And hand in hand with this preparation has gone actual accomplishment, actual testing of plans and strength, so that even as we dreamed of larger accomplishment, we have realized the utmost on present resources. We have not hung back, fearful, because we were not equipped, cap-a-pie, to enter the conflict; rather have we met the emergency and supplemented our initial activities by preparation for further participation.

Just such a problem in policy faces many of our institutions. It faces our own University. It faces this division of the University. The demand for trained men and women recurs daily. Can we answer the emergency call? Can we prepare our students more rapidly to take the places that await them? We shall try.

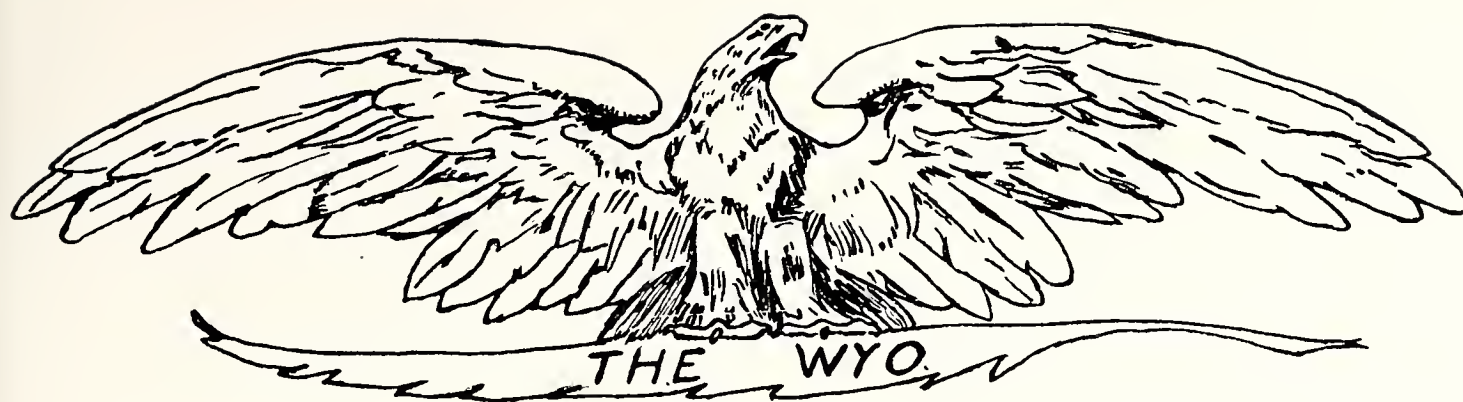

The Division of Commerce, beginning with the summer session of 1918, will offer short intensive courses of study. The aim will be to give students the technique and skill necessary to enable them to enter upon clerical duties in the shortest possible time. The ultimate success of these students must depend upon their resourcefulness and continued preparation while engaged in the actual pursuit of the chosen work.

Home Economics

WHAT role does Home Economics play in the education of every woman? It is not another phase of our twentieth century materialistic dream, a course which trains our young women merely to be efficient in the homely arts of cooking and sewing. The main purpose is not so much, as the words might suggest, to train her for economy in the home, or to enable her in college to prepare "feeds" that warm the heart. To be sure, Home Economics answers the growing cry for specialized education; it has a broad field all its own. Yet more than training young women to pursue a vocation, this department within four short years molds the character, raises the standards of living, establishes ideals, and gives each young woman the weapon "to think as well as to do."

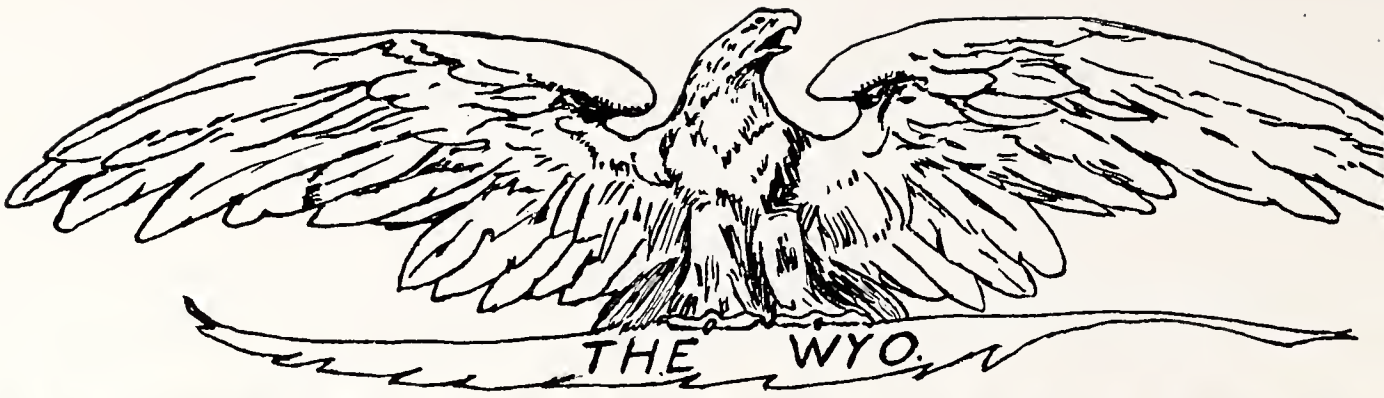

As a whole it is strictly a scientific course. That is, it seeks through the study of such subjects as Chemistry, Bacteriology, Botany, Zoology, Foods, and allied sciences, to give each student a questioning mind, a desire to seek after truth for its own sake, and a broad vision of life as conceived by the Great Creator. Are not these fundamental requisites for worthy citizenship, for service of humanity at large, and for the glorious heritage of womanhood?

Notwithstanding that the arranged subjects draw upon the reasoning powers, logical and analytical thinking, they also develop the appreciation of beauty and art. Costume Design, House Planning, and Interior Decoration have their place in the Home Economics curriculum, to make each student's education symmetrical and well balanced, if I may borrow those terms from Biology and Nutrition. If we hold the view that a college education only marks the beginning of knowledge, the dawn of a bigger life of service, with efficiency, truth, beauty of thought and deed, and charity, as the stepping-stones towards a higher goal than earning and preparing our daily bread, then Home Economics has its function in the education of every young woman.

Military Department

NEW shade of cadet green has appeared on the campus this year, as to the proper designation of which experts differ. Some say it's forestry green, some say it's home defense green, and some say it's—oh! well! no matter what they say—it's green all right, the new uniform, but it's the only thing green about the Cadet Corps. We're a small organization, this year, but exceeding wise. "Heads up"—"Eyes front"—"Body erect on hips"—we know the language and act accordingly—sometimes. Do you want to know about the ballistics of the new "mystery gun", or how to semaphore back the news about the Reds mounting up in the orchard, or how, in the most approved method, to make good Huns out of live ones? Ask us!

Also, we are good-natured and well-disciplined. We get our heels together when convinced that the occasion demands, say "Sir" when addressed, when we don't forget, and cheerfully conform to little requests emanating from the Faculty Board of Strategy, that we drill an extra hour here or there, or add an hour's theory each week, or dabble in various hitherto uncatalogued intricacies of military science. Why? For one thing, it's by way of doing our bit, and for another the purpose back of military training in college is more apparent than it was to some of us before the world caught fire. Specifically, we believe that military training at the University of Wyoming has justified itself by RESULTS. The conviction is borne upon us that the man who is good enough to sport shoulder straps or chevrons in our Cadet Corps, is good enough to do the same in Uncle Sam's Army—and Uncle Sam knows it! Glance back over the roster of cadet officers for a few years past—nearly all are now in service, and most of them commissioned officers or in training for commissions in Officers' Training Camps. Two former Wyoming cadets are members of the General Staff—the "brain trust" of the United States Army. Another is a distinguished naval constructor. Versatile infantrymen, dashing artillerists, bow-legged cavalymen, high flying aviators, signal and ordnance experts, paper-work sharks, military police sleuths—all of these and more have been furnished the government in its time of need by the University—and we remember it was on our Heaven-kissing campus—the one we tread our martial steps on—that they got their first rudiments of things military. Nor do we forget that one of the first "War Heroes" and earliest recipients of the French Croix de Guerre was OUR Major, three years or so back.

You've heard before that the ideals of the Military Department are expressed in the motto of the United States Military Academy at West Point—"DUTY—HONOR—COUNTRY". Our boys in service are LIVING those ideals.

THE Executive Committee this year has had a little private war on hand which has taken all the strategy at its disposal, but by a concentrated fire of Rigid Economy, the Budget System, and Hard Work we have made good headway against the enemy, Financial Troubles. We started out with a bad heritage of old debts, and it has been to the credit of the committee, especially to Mr. Buchanan and Mr. Hunton, that the greatest part of the past debt is erased and this year's finances, in spite of the war, managed on a profit basis.

The purpose of this committee is to be of service to the student body of the University of Wyoming, and it is our hope that in this we have succeeded.

That which we took the most joy in doing was the purchasing and presenting to the University a service flag, four of whose stars stand for members of this year's committee, Mr. Partridge and Mr. Asay, both now "over there"; Mr. Covert and Mr. Feris, who are working for commissions at Camp Funston, Kansas.

THE Quill Club has again completed a year of achievement in the field to which its efforts are dedicated. The papers read at the bi-monthly meetings have been of unusually high quality, and the discussions provoked by them of great interest. During the year eight new members have become proud wearers of the quill. The special issue of The Student published by the Club gave public testimony of the work which is being done.

One of the most important events of the year was the unfurling of the Quill service flag which now hangs in Dr. Hebard's office. With half of its total male membership in service, Gamma Chapter feels that it has not played the slacker in the nation's time of trial.

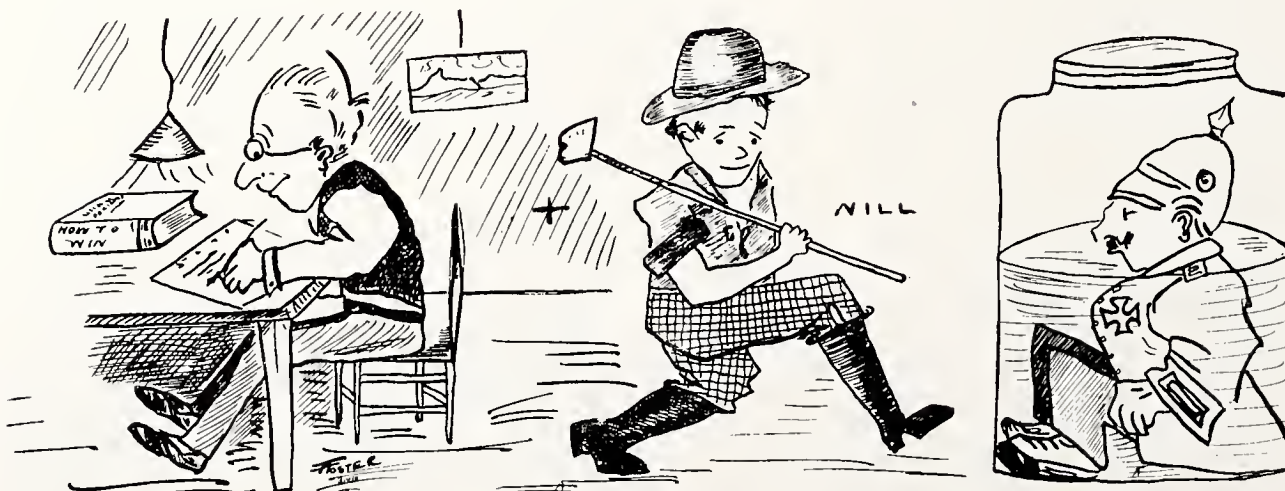

The Agricultural Club

THE Agricultural Club of the University of Wyoming, established in March, 1911, is an organization for all students of collegiate rank who are interested in agriculture. Its aims are three-fold—educational, social, and inspirational—and the bi-monthly meetings share this triple nature. The first aim is accomplished by addresses on agriculture and related subjects, which not only give valuable information, but stimulate discussion and individual study. The second and third aims are accomplished by enabling members of the Agricultural College, both students and faculty, to meet on common ground, and to become better acquainted with one another's life and work. The Club stands for progress, not only in agriculture, but in every field of college and outside activity.

This year, on account of the World War, the Agricultural Club has a smaller active membership than at any other period. Many of the active members have enlisted in the military service of the United States.

PHI UPSILON OMICRON, an honorary Home Economics Fraternity, was founded in the College of Minnesota, at St. Paul, February 10, 1909. Because of the excellent standing of the Home Economics Department in the University of Wyoming, Alpha Chapter became interested in us and invited this department to membership. Delta Chapter of Phi Upsilon Omicron was installed in the University of Wyoming, November 29, 1915.

The purpose of this organization is to establish and strengthen the bonds of friendship, to promote the moral and intellectual development of its members, and to advance and upbuild the science of Home Economics.

The Engineering Society of the University of Wyoming was founded in February, 1915, for the purpose of bringing the Engineers of the University into closer relationship and to stimulate interest in engineering subjects.

The Men's Commons

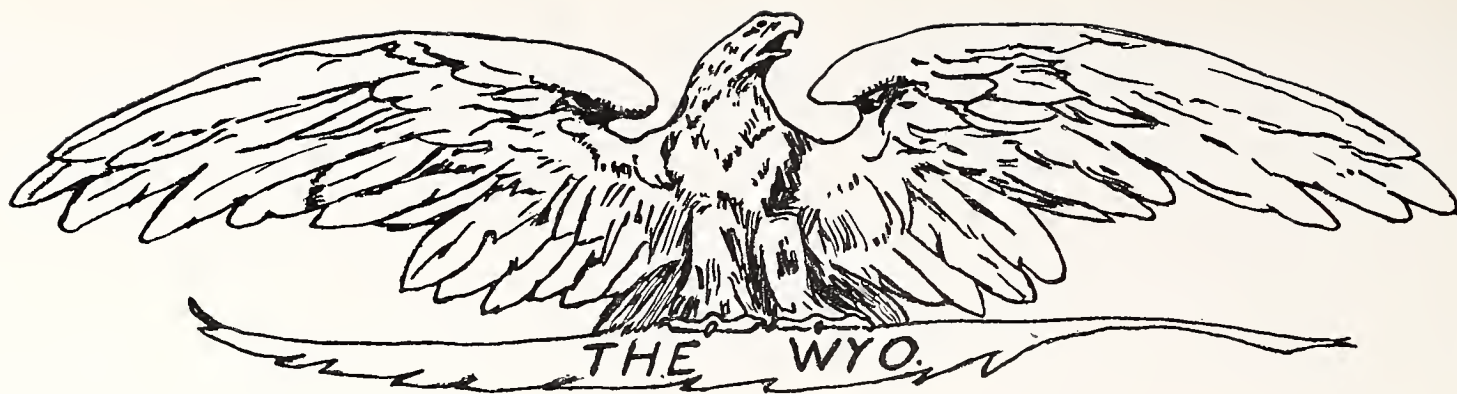

STARTED in the year 1908 under the direction of the University, the Commons has been a rendezvous for the various students each year—a place not merely where one could secure three square meals every day, but where one could meet with his fellow-students and engage in conversation, or perhaps gather around the piano and sing such songs as “The Cannibal King,” “I Went to the Animal Fair,” “Solomon Levi,” and the other innumerable selections that gladden a lonesome heart. For such is the purpose of the Commons, to provide sustenance not only to the youth famished with hunger, but also to the youth smitten with that peculiar disease called “homesickness”, which attacks every Freshman at one time or another; to dispel the “Blues” which occur with irregular frequency, particularly upon Monday.

That the Commons has been a success in this endeavor is evidenced by the rotundity of many of its members and the happy, cheery smiles with which a visitor is greeted upon his first entrance into the jolly group of Commoners. (For their aim has always been, and always will be, a greater University of Wyoming.)

The Year in Dramatics

IN University dramatic circles the past year has been one of signal success—success from every standpoint, artistically as well as financially. Too much credit cannot be given Mrs. DeKay for the untiring effort which made possible the three dramatic triumphs which made the year notable. Again has it been proved that there is no dearth of dramatic talent in the University, especially since in each of the three plays given new stars have taken their places in the dramatic firmament. For the discovery and development of this unsuspected talent much credit is again due Mrs. DeKay.

The first dramatic presentation of the year was the light opera, "When Johnny Comes Marching Home," by Edwards and Stange, given by the Musical Department at Root's Opera House the evening of December 14. This was repeated the next evening at the Y. M. C. A. hut at Fort Russell, and at both places it played to a capacity house. The opera was under the direction of Mr. Albert Lukken, with Mrs. DeKay as dramatic coach and Mr. Frisbie as director. The story was of a highly humorous nature, with a strongly patriotic tone, the music of a popular and catchy sort, and the best of acting and singing, rounded out a combination which assured its success from the minute the curtain rose on the first act.

Equally successful, although of an entirely different nature, was the Y. W. C. A. play given in the auditorium on Saturday, February 16, 1918. For this presentation was chosen Charles Rann Kennedy's deeply thoughtful and poetic drama, "The Servant in the House". It was acknowledged that the Y. W. C. A. had set itself a difficult task in attempting to give a play of this sort; it was equally evident at the conclusion of the performance that the difficult task had been admirably done. The effective simplicity of the single stage setting made it possible to give the play in the auditorium. Of so nearly even value were the parts that it would be impossible to pick out any one of the actors for commendation. It is enough to say that they managed to put the message of the play across the footlights in a manner that professionals could not excel.

Of a still different type was George Fitch's screamingly funny farce of college life, "The College Widow". This was given at Root's Opera House on the evening of April 19th. Greatly in contrast to the serious tone of "The Servant in the House", this was of the lightest touch, and was as provocative of laughter as the other was of thought. It served to re-emphasize the amazing versatility that characterized the year as a whole. Widely varying as the three plays were in scope and treatment, they had one characteristic in common—the uniform excellence of the presentation, which in turn was responsible for their uniform success.

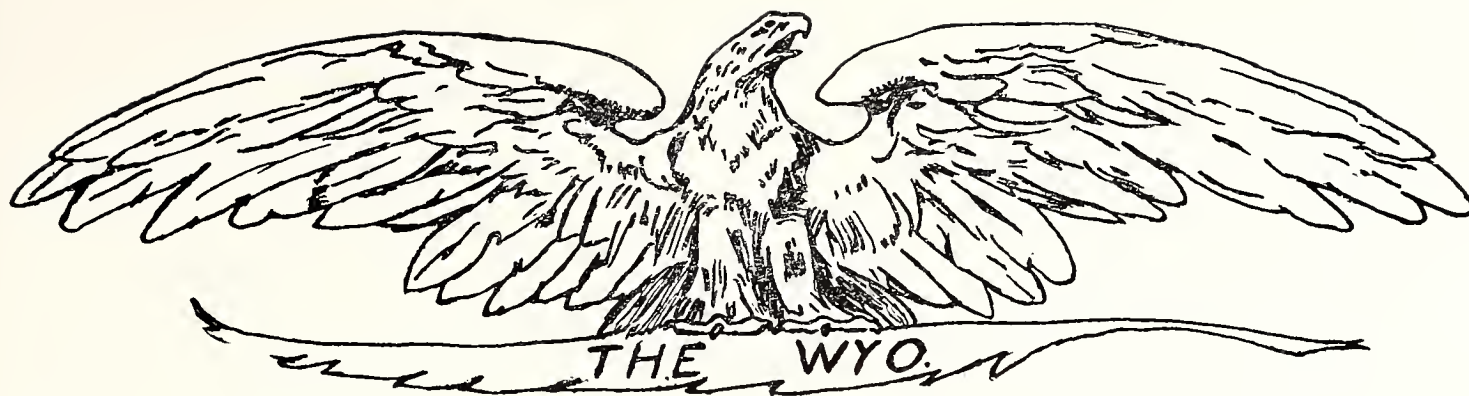

University Band

THE University Band is a voluntary organization and was organized for the purpose of being useful to student activities. Not a bad motto is it? Many a time it has given up its preparation for a concert to get ready to play for some athletic game or rally.

Although affairs looked rather discouraging at the declaration of war, yet through the efforts of the band committee, the membership is still up to the twenty-five mark. This consists of two faculty members of the band. These are appointed by the President of the University. The third member of the committee is elected by the students of the band from the members who are upper classmen. The director is appointed by the President of the University in conference with the band committee. Any man on the campus might be selected for this position, although the last two have been members of the Department of Music. However, being on the faculty of the Department of Music gives no one a claim to the directorship of the band. The band will always try to get the best available man as director. That is one reason why it is a good band.

A number of concerts have been given this year, and all of them have reflected credit on the band and also on the University. The band is one of the best assets of the University; it is the organization with the GO. Twenty-five loyal fellows can make anything go.

Delta Sigma Rho

ON May 4, 1917, the Wyoming intercollegiate debaters, organized as Delta Epsilon Kappa, a local honorary debating fraternity, saw their hopes realized and their earnest efforts crowned with success; for on that day they were granted a charter by the national honorary debating fraternity, Delta Sigma Rho.

Delta Sigma Rho ranks as one of the foremost societies of its kind in the United States at the present time. It has over fifty chapters, including some of the largest colleges in the country, as Yale, Harvard, Columbia, Pennsylvania State, Michigan and Illinois. The membership is composed of men who have been prominent in intercollegiate debating and although the membership at present is quite small at the University of Wyoming, they will always strive to maintain the high ideals for which the fraternity stands.

THE members of Skahundawa Camp during the past year have found much enjoyment as well as profit in trying to carry out the health program arranged by the National Camp. Much walking has been done, and upon one occasion, November 25, all the members, with Mrs. Knight as a guest, enjoyed a long walk followed by an outdoor breakfast. Other walks such as to the Holliday ranch and Floral Canyon brought equal pleasure. As an organization the Camp has not done the usual amount of work, but individually and with other organizations the girls and their guardian have done much knitting and other Red Cross work. One October forenoon was spent by a number of the members in picking potatoes at the Experiment Farm. In so far as possible the Camp has tried to carry out the war program by conserving food and by buying War Savings Stamps. The year just past has indeed been a happy and profitable one for all the Camp Fire Girls.

DORMITORIES

Mrs. Morna Alma Wood

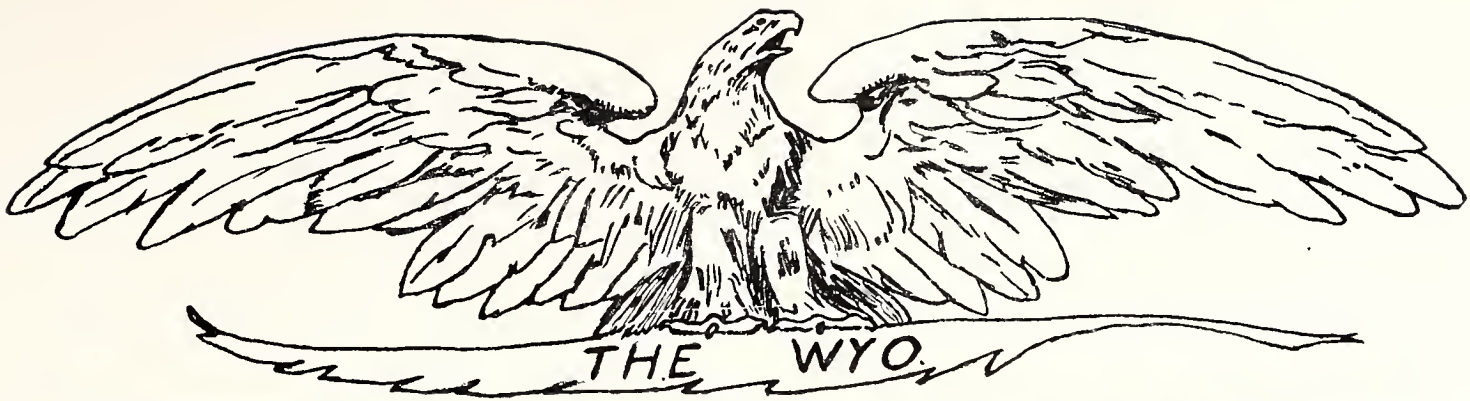

Our Dormitories

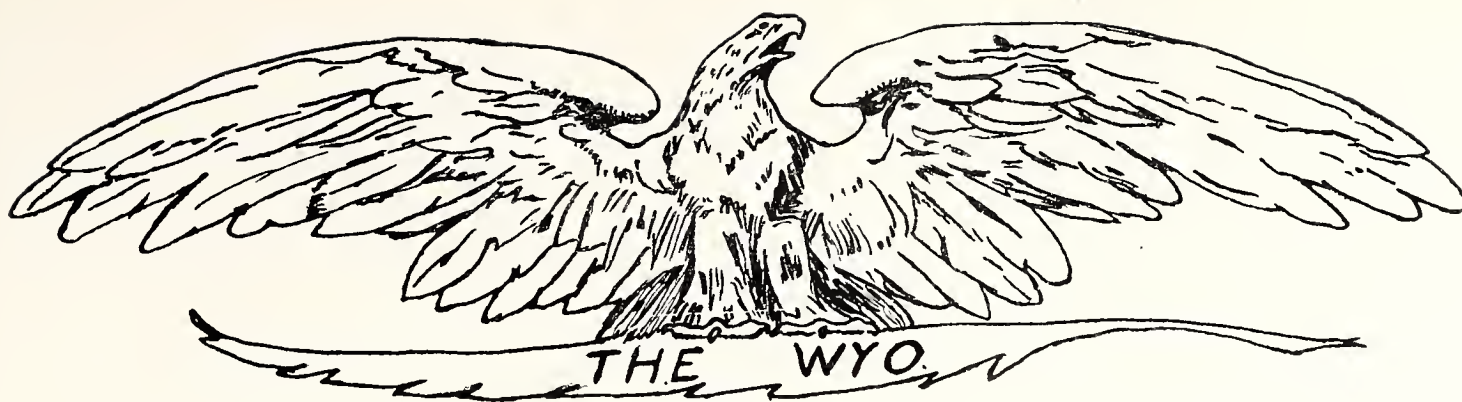

HE war has not taken any of our girls as it has taken so many of our boys. The going of our boys means many opportunities are open to girls which have never been before them previously, but our girls are realizing the need of a greater education in order to fill the still greater positions which will be open to them, and they have not given up their college educations. All those who came to our University this fall came with the intentions of finishing their education and doing a big share of war work at the same time, and these intentions they have kept.

Practically every girl knits, and there is not an hour in the day when some one can not be found doing this work. They knit whenever they have a free minute, at dining table, at lectures, at recitals, at committee meetings, even at little parties and birthday "spreads." These girls are never found wasting their time, and they are knitting for our soldiers, and not for themselves. Scarfs, sweaters, helmets, wristlets, socks, many in number, sizes, shapes and colors have been sent from our dormitories for our boys in the trenches or for those who will soon be there. In almost every window of our halls Red Cross membership cards are to be seen. So those people who are not acquainted with our University may realize that each one of us is doing her best to help the great cause of our nation.

This does not mean that our war-work is so serious we never have any good times. It only makes us happier because we feel that we are doing something, even though it may seem small in comparison, for those others who are more fortunate than we, and who can carry the flag and march to the front.

Explanations

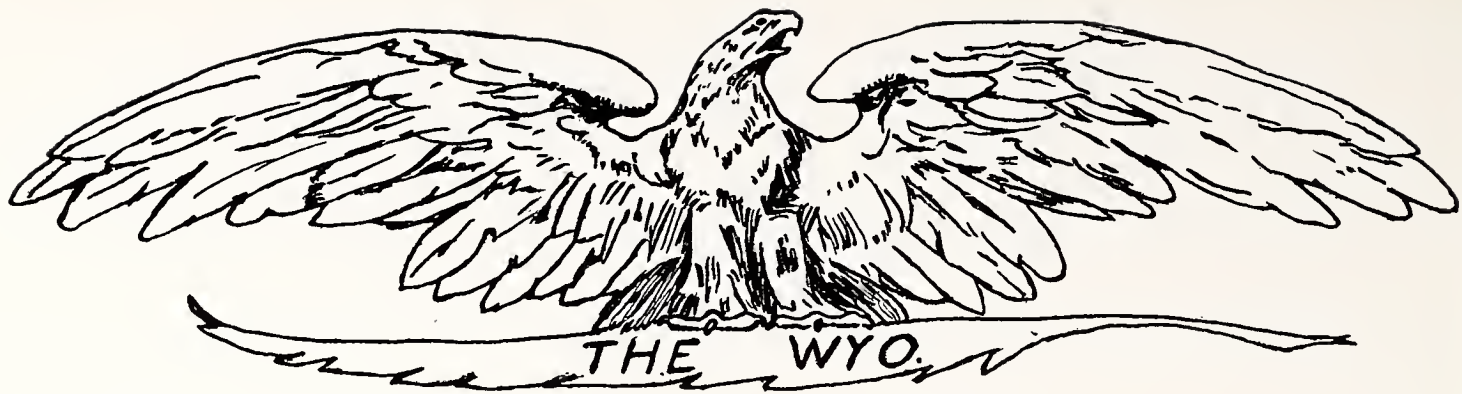

NO, you near-sighted and visionary fish, those are not dove-cotes there on the hill—those are the girls' dormitories. You're not in the country now, so forget about birds and pigeons long enough for me to tell you the history of those two buildings.

That big red brick structure over there was erected by Columbus in 1492, and served as a hostelry for his sailors after their severe voyage. What! You didn't know Columbus came this far west? Oh, yes, he shipped out here in a prairie-schooner with the rest of his gang way back in the dark ages of the continent.

Now, to explain how U. of W. fell heir to that old relic. An idea prevalent back in '49 was to found a State University somewhere in the western wilds. Accordingly, eyes were cast about for a good locality. Laramie, the great city of the plains, was selected, probably because of its locaton, but more probably because of that big red building, for well did the people of the universe realize what an ideal home that old shack would make for the girls. Columbus was paid his price and turned it over without a murmur; anyhow, he wanted to get back to Chicago.

Now, don't get excited. I told you I would tell you about both of them, didn't I? Give me time—it takes time to narrate all the things that happen in those two domiciles. We'll go over and take a look at Hoyt Hall, which rears its young dome so proudly in the ozone. Go quietly, for we mustn't disturb "Sody." He has an interest in that red house. Now don't feel abashed at the newness of this dwelling, for "all is not gold that glitters." Yes, there's a mat to wipe your feet on before entering. It's really no different from the other dorm, only you must keep your eyes "front." That fellow standing by the radiator in the hall was "Farmer." Yes, he had a friend with him. Just between us two, let me say that "Farmer" aspires to be Dean of Women, and if persistency counts he'll realize his desire, for he's there most of the time. He has a friend by the name of "Denny" who tries to be as regular as the old boy, but sometimes is led astray by down-town dances, and the like.

Let us mount these stairs and cross the hall. The floors are highly waxed—be careful not to slip. Nobody ever does, however, except the girls, and they only when a manly arm is near. Now, to see a room-full of wonders. Yes, they call it "shining the dolls" here at the Uni. "Buck" Appleby, Long, Holland, and numerous others always find a place in that room. Bobby, a mere child, got in there one night and forgot to turn on the lights until requested to do so by Mrs. Knight.

We know heaps about this dorm, for they had "open house" day here once this year, right after the first house cleaning. Of course, simpleton, the other dorm holds "open house", but clean-up week doesn't come again until about May 1st.

That's right, glad you mentioned it, for I undoubtedly would have overlooked it. No, those little circular splotches are not buffalo wallows; those represent the first attempts of the girls at landscape gardening. Give 'em time; they'll improve if they stay four years. Before you go I may as well explain the use of those staircases on the exterior of the dorms. Don't confuse them with fire escapes. Those iron things are "movie" ladders, especially adapted for all first-class schools and colleges. The State Legislature has ordered these as a particularly convenient place where the young ladies can sit and dry and sun their hair. There may be other uses for these structures, but so far as knowledge goes they haven't been discovered yet.

Football Season of 1917

WYOMING began and ended the season by defeating their opponents. Seven games were played and three were won by the University.

The first game was with the Colorado Aggies, who were the Rocky Mountain champions for the last two years and, as usual, had a very strong team.

The second game that we won was played at the U. W. with the Greeley Normals. Wyoming made one touchdown and a goal kick.

The last game was at Greeley, where we defeated the Teachers again.

Wyoming's team was not very heavy, but they had the pep and the "bulldog" tenacity.

The men who played on the Wyoming team were the following:

Buchanan, the Captain, heavyweight and fighter.

Ferris, Simpson, Soule, Larson, and Layman, who were quick, active, and hard to hold.

Others who had the fight and the grit were: Crawford, Tucker, Burns, Covert, Nelson, Shaw, Laird, Jensen, Lundgren, Marston, and Parker.

FOOTBALL SCORE

October 6, 1917—U. W. 6, Colorado Aggies 0.

October 13, 1917—U. W. 3, Colorado School of Mines 51.

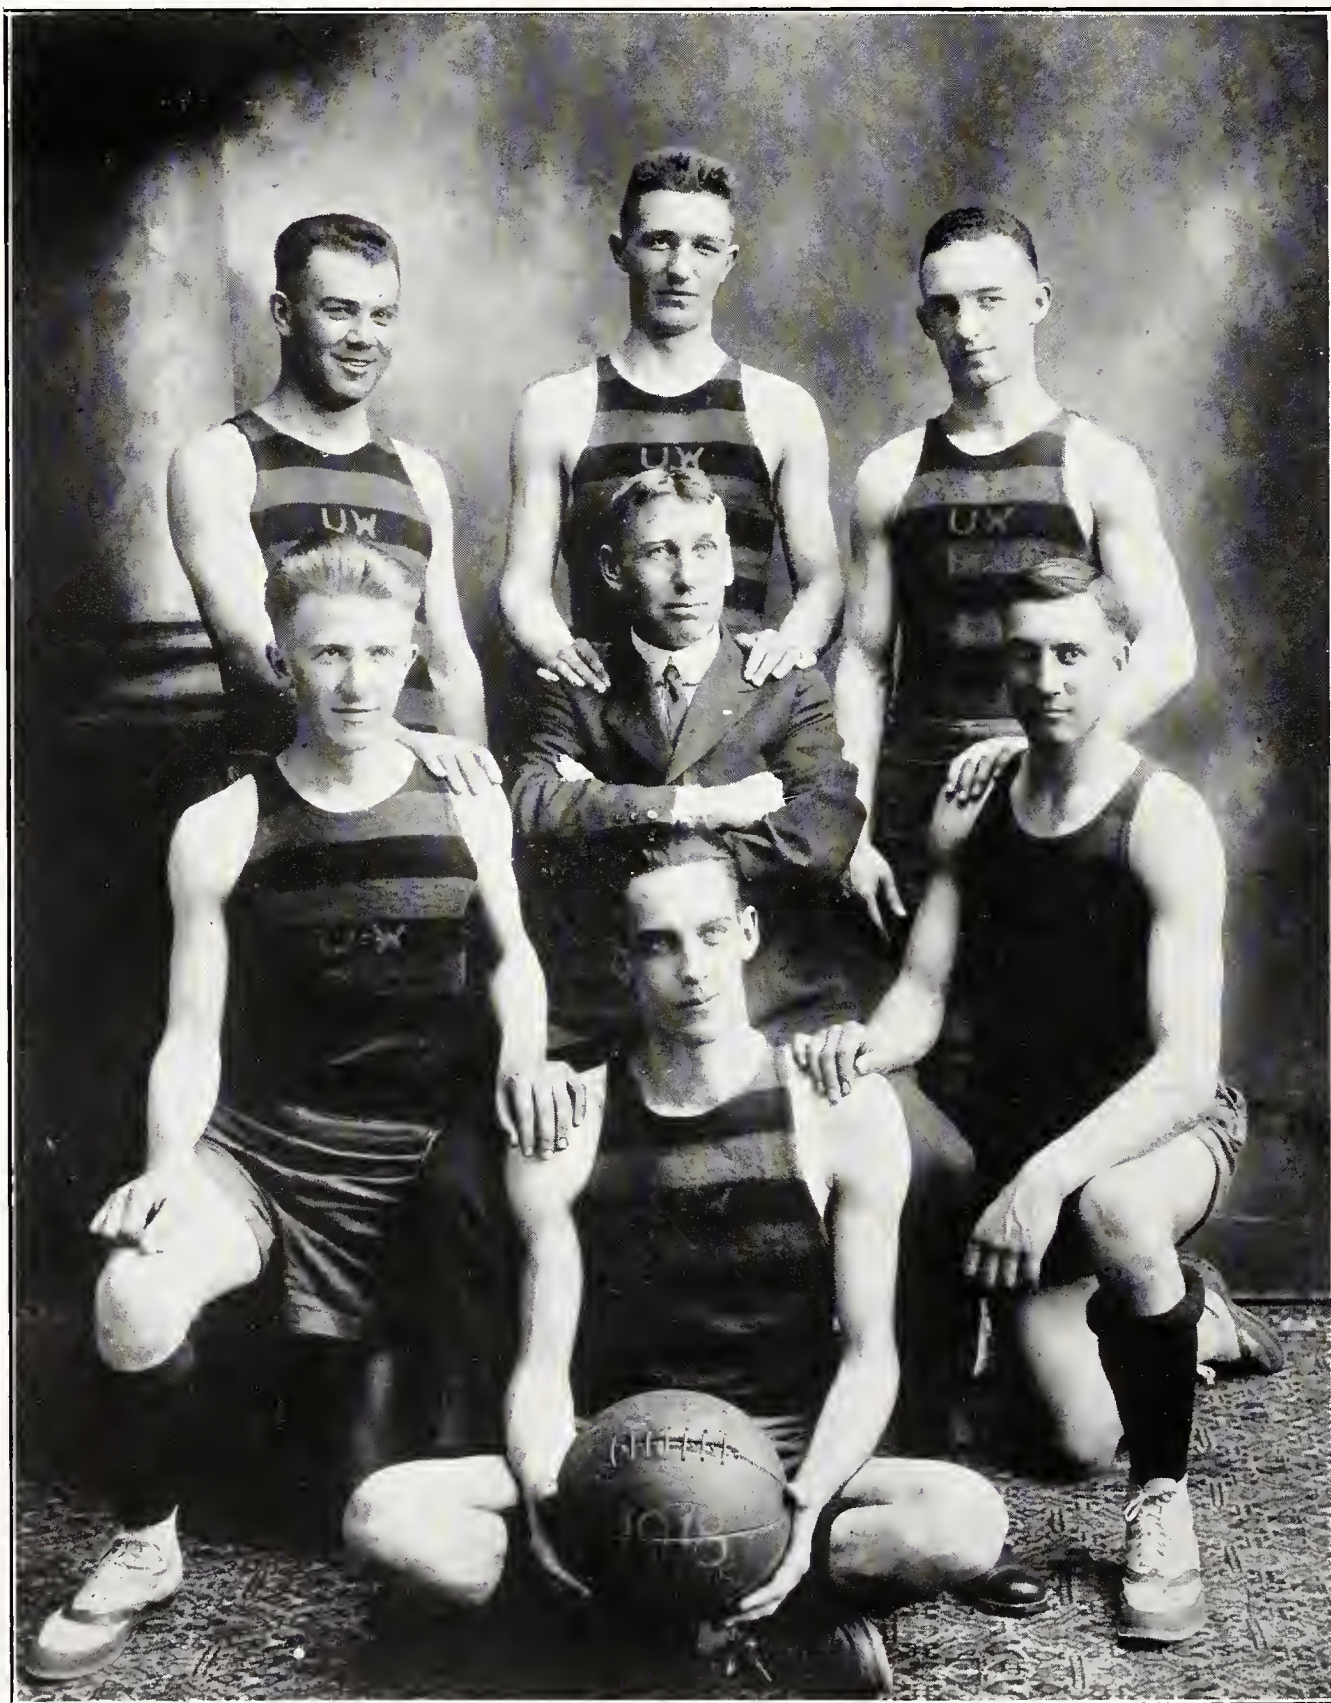

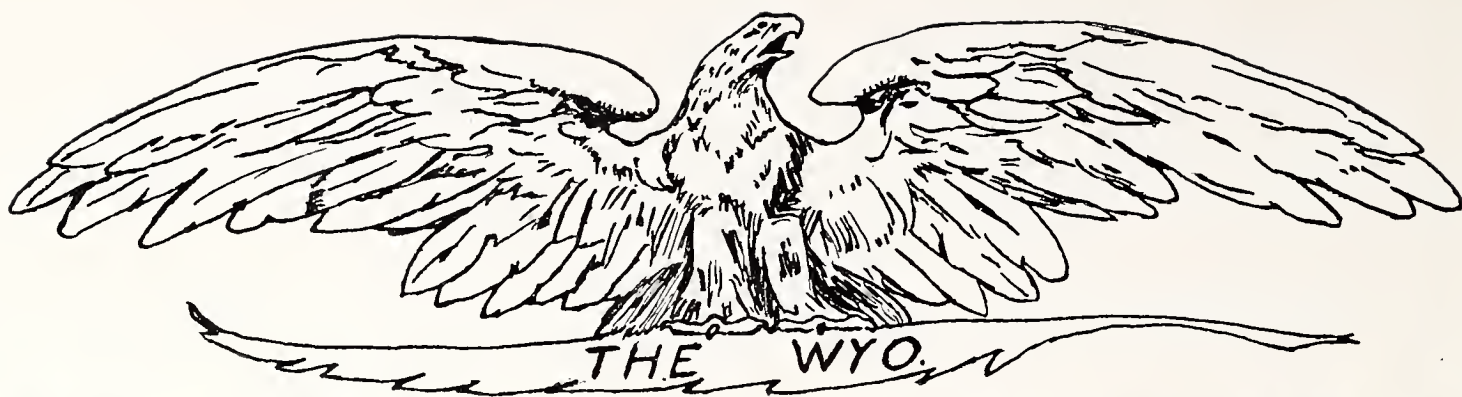

October 20, 1917—U. W. 0, Utah University 14.

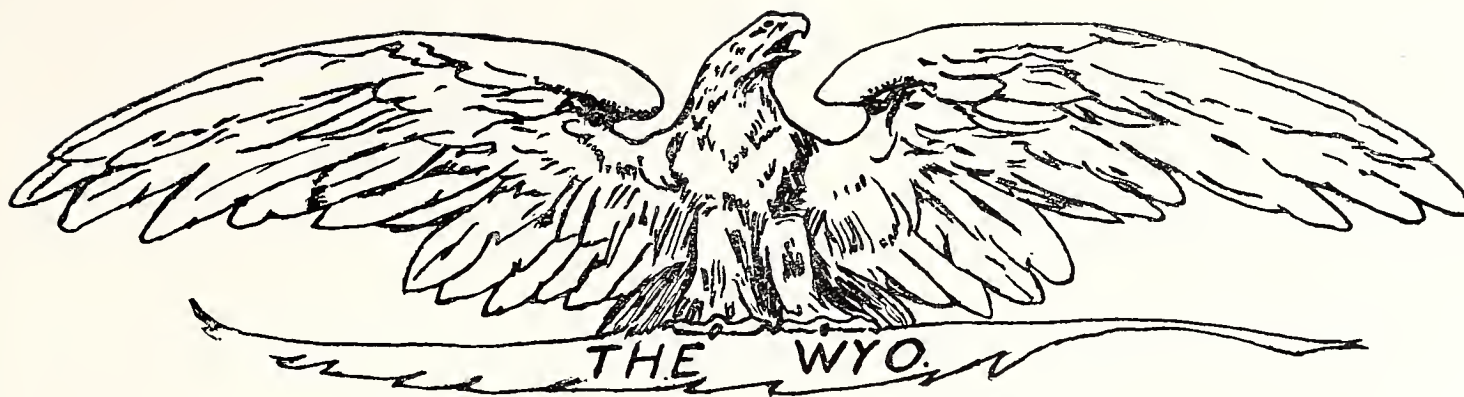

October 24, 1917—U. W. 0, Utah Aggies 57.

November 3, 1917—U. W. 0, Denver University 18.

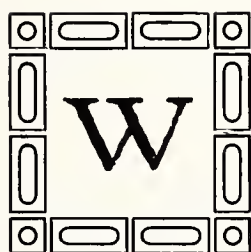

November 10, 1917—U. W. 7, Greeley Normal 0.

November 29, 1917—U. W. 8, Greeley Normal 0.

Basketball Season of 1918

WYOMING won three basketball games out of five. The first two were taken from us before we got into condition to play. But it sent the electric spark through the boys and they defeated every team that they encountered after that.

The star team of Colorado College, the Cheyenne Alumni, and Greeley Normals were overwhelmed by the Wyoming Cowboys.

Those who played and fought for Wyoming were: Lundgren, Simpson, Layman, Buchanan, Larson, Avent, and Burns.

BASKETBALL SCORE

January 17, 1918—U. W. 17, Colorado Aggies 26.

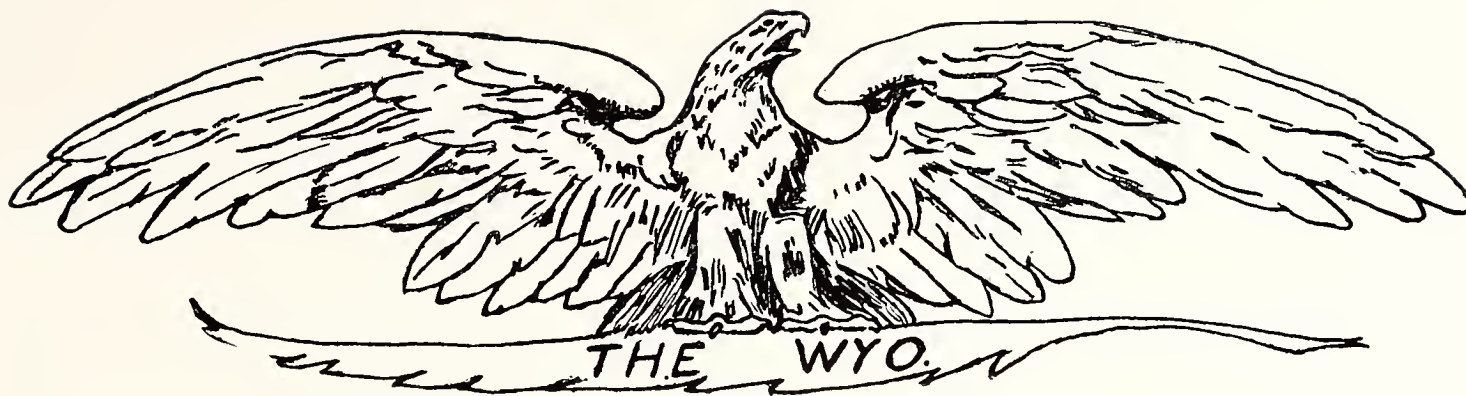

January 18, 1918—U. W. 14, Colorado University 36.

January 19, 1918—U. W. 25, Colorado College 21.

January 26, 1918—U. W. 51, Cheyenne H. S. Alumni 6.

February 9, 1918—U. W. 27, Greeley Normal 23.

Girls' Basketball

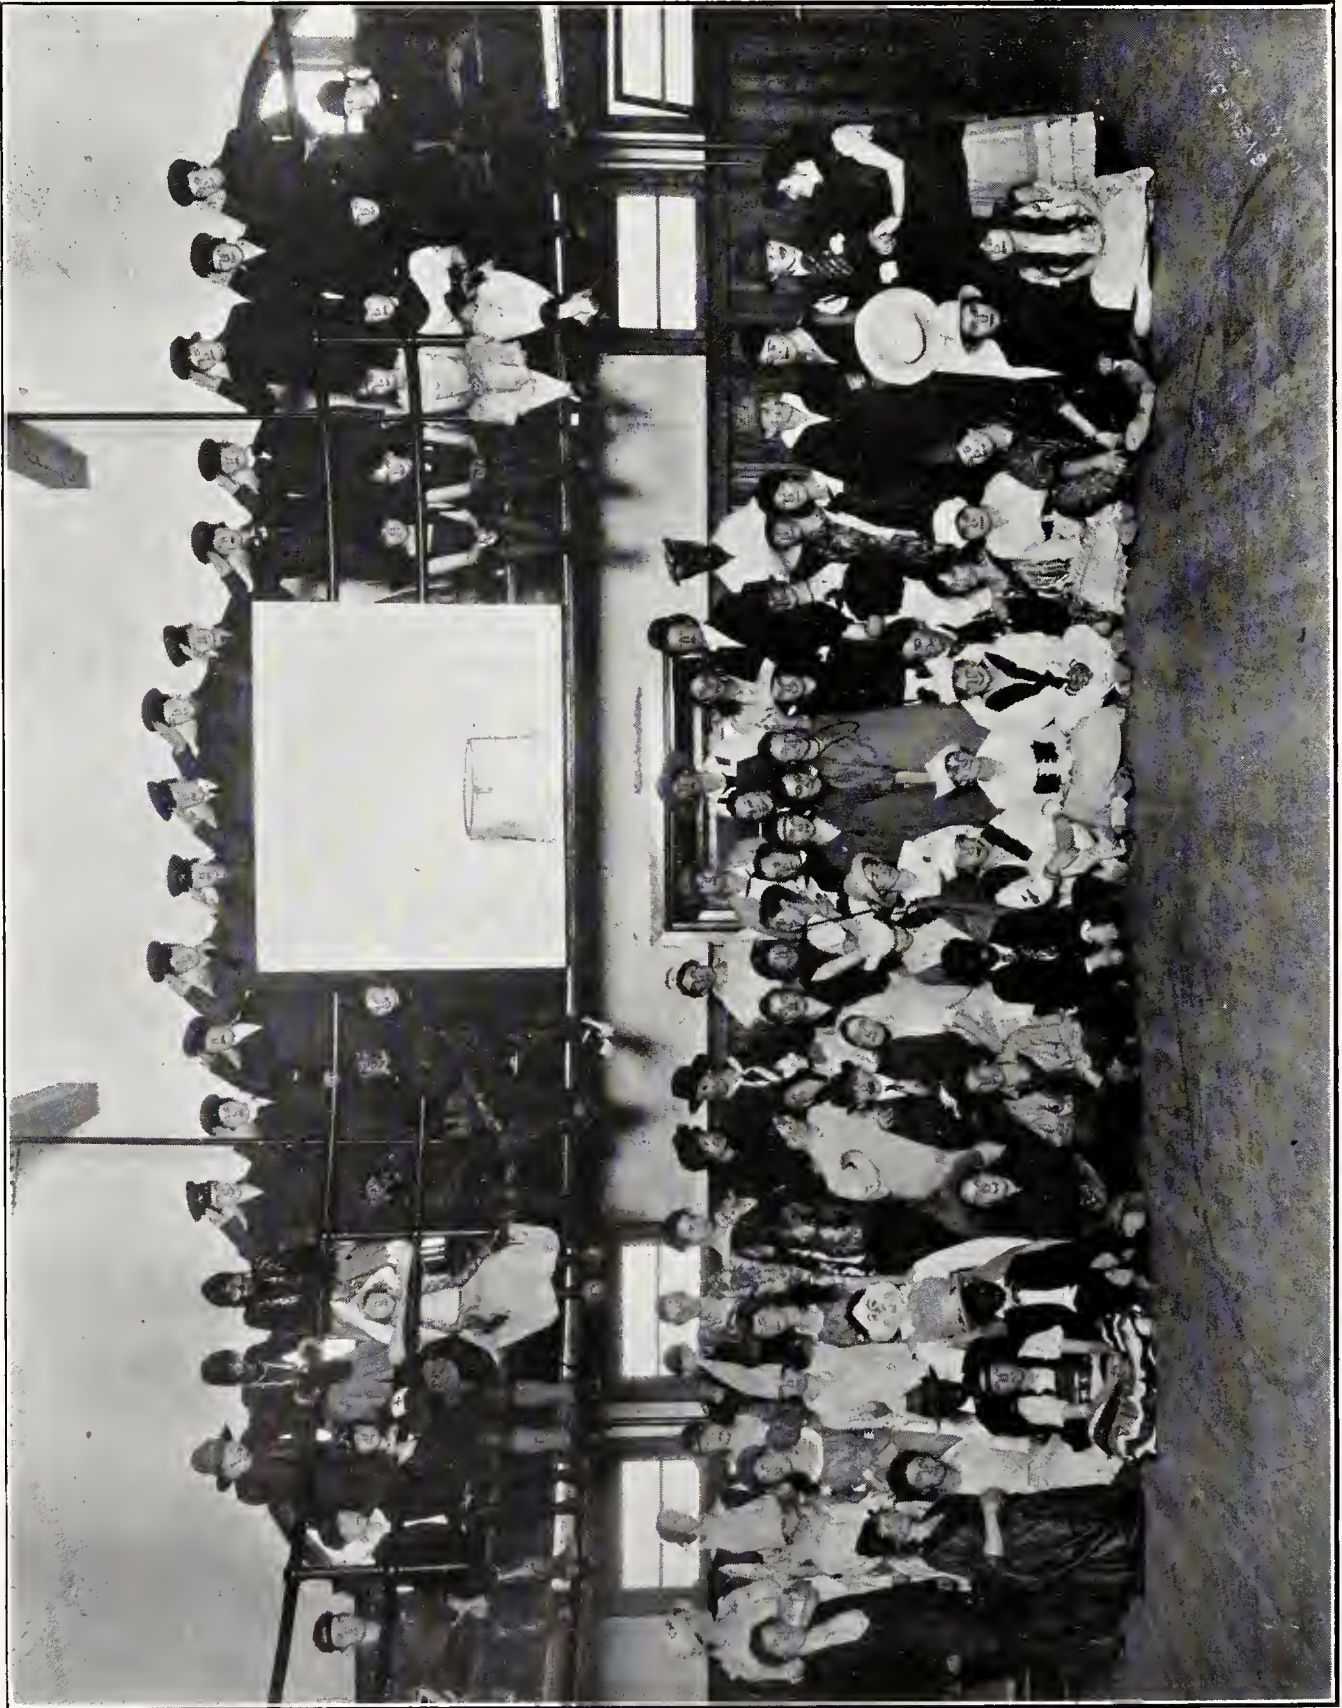

FROM the beginning of school last fall, a great deal of interest in basketball was shown by the University girls. It was decided to have a series of games between the Prep, Freshman, and Sophomore teams, since inter-collegiate games are not allowed. The Sophomore team came out victorious in all these games and so were awarded W's.

The line-up of their team is as follows:

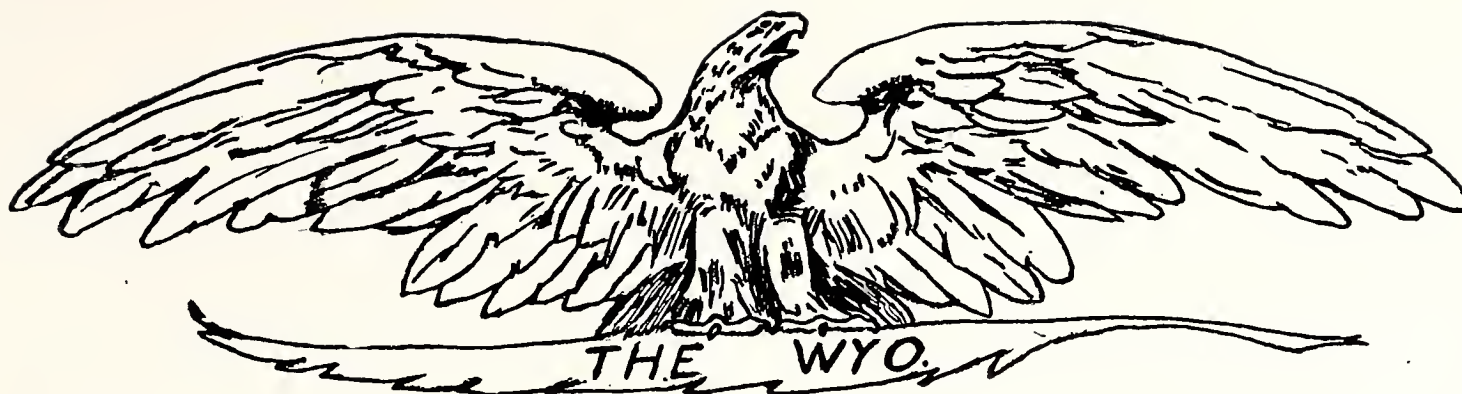

Centers—Catherine Dunn, Meredith Langheldt.

Forwards—Sidney George, Betty Beck, Hazel Spencer.

Guards—Blanche Evans, Captain; Norah Banner.

DEBATING

DURING the year 1917-1918 Wyoming again carried on three men's debates. On account of the small number of debaters, one team had to participate in two intercollegiate debates. The question for all three debates was, "Resolved, That the federal government should own and operate all the coal mines of the United States offering coal for sale."

Affirmative Team—G. C. Atteberry and A. P. Wichmann.

Negative Team—Charles Coolidge and Ralph McWhinnie.

The first debate was held at Logan, Utah, against Utah Agricultural College, on March 8th. The other two were held on March 22nd, against Denver University, at Laramie, and against Colorado Agricultural College, at Fort Collins.

Women's Debates

YOMING UNIVERSITY took part the second year in the Triangular Debating League for Women with Greeley Normal and Colorado Agricultural College. The affirmative met the Colorado Agricultural College at Laramie. This debate was won by C. A. C. by a two-to-one decision. The negative debated at Greeley, where the decision also was two to one in favor of the State Teachers' College. The Triangular Debates were held on February 15th.

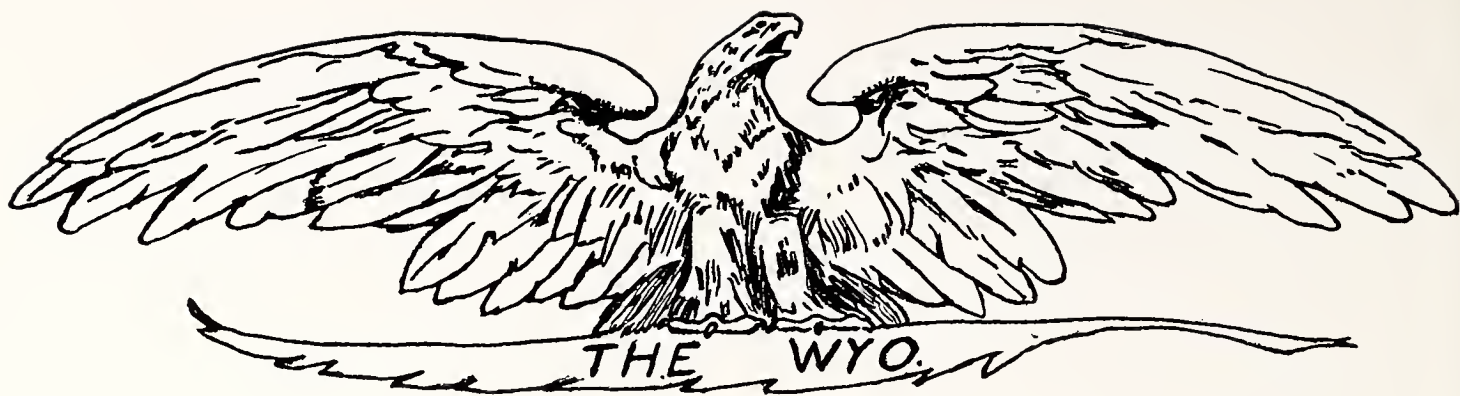

WOMEN DEBATERS

Against Greeley—Stella Kellogg and Winifred Dillingham.

Against Colorado Agricultural College—Nettie Potts and Martha Marquis.

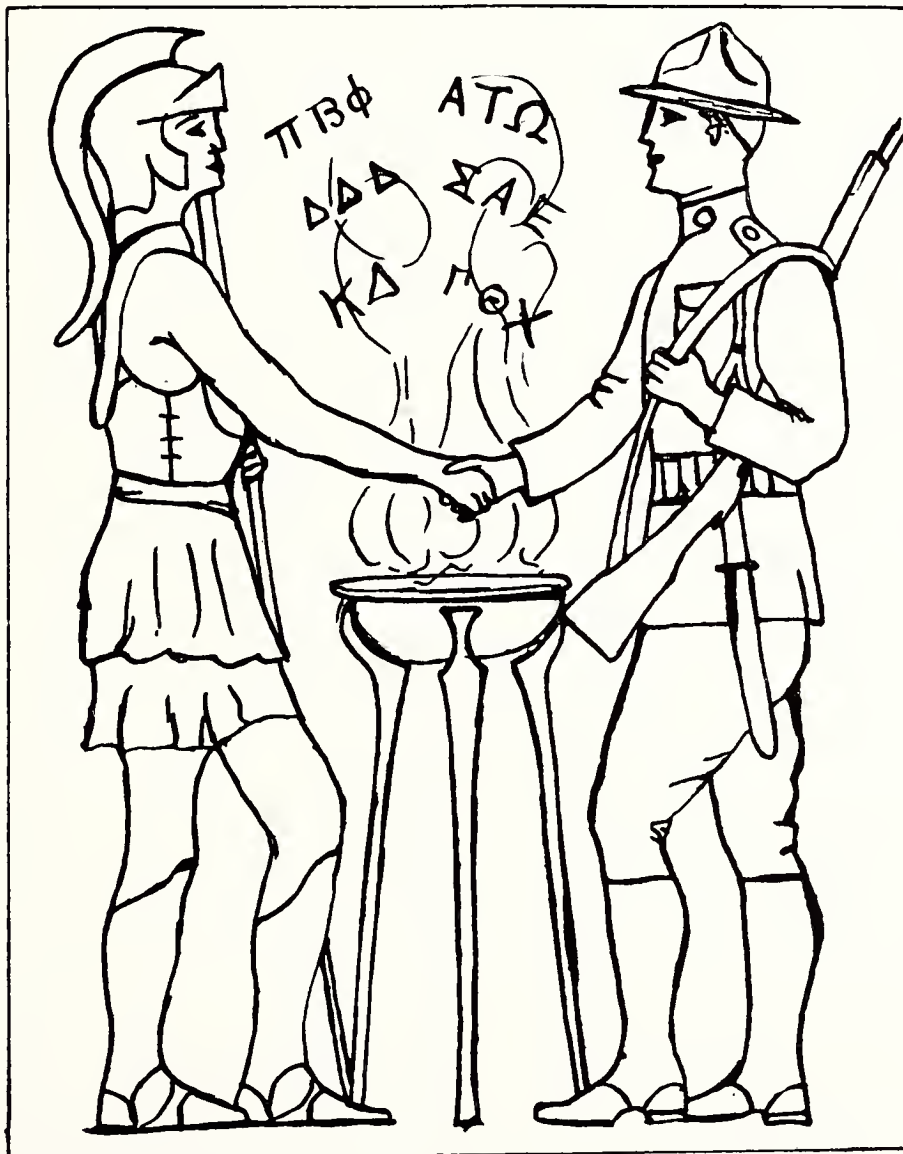

Question: "Resolved, That the Allies' terms of peace at the close of the present war should provide for disarmament of the individual nations under some form of an International Peace League.

SOCIETY

SOCIETY

COMMENCEMENT WEEK

In spite of the fact that several of the Senior boys had commenced serving Uncle Sam, and were miles away from the scene of their college commencement, those present participated in the usual amount of festivity.

First, the Inter-Fraternity Luncheon was given. All the "Frats" on the campus endeavored to make this a successful and enjoyable party; therefore, nothing was lacking in the motive, and if we can judge from the looks and actions of those present, nothing was lacking in the luncheon itself. After the luncheon everyone enjoyed a matinee dance.

President and Mrs. Duniway gave a reception to the Seniors. When we say "Prexy" and Mrs. Duniway give a reception we say it is the best that can be given. They have won and sustained this reputation in their several years spent at the University and this reception only added to their laurels.

The usual commencement exercises took place, and those who graduated felt that their commencement had been the best in the history of Wyoming.

THE JUNIOR PROM

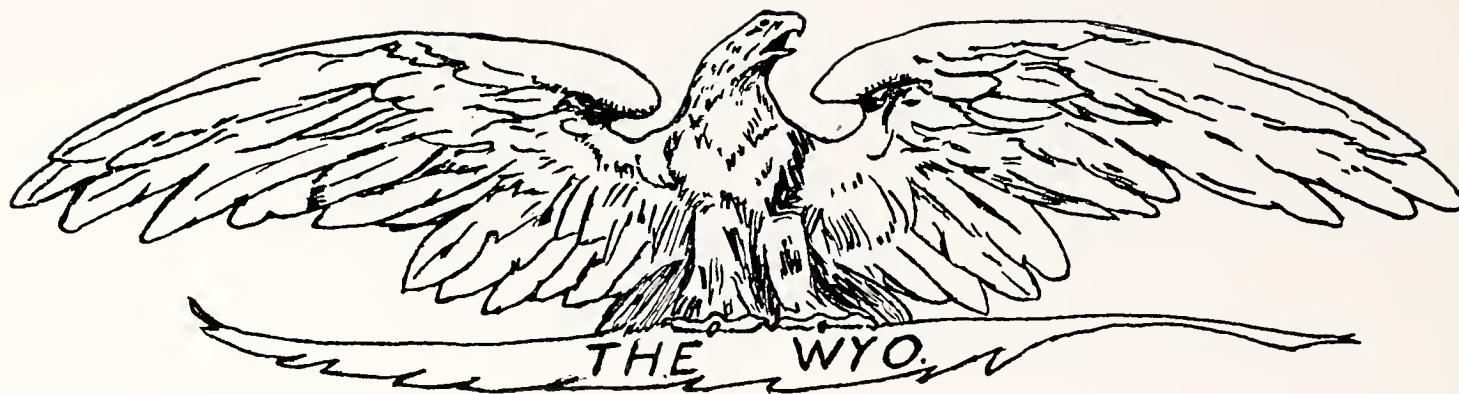

The Ninth Annual Junior Prom, given December 20, was such that everyone admitted this year's Juniors were the luckiest of classes. For in place of searching for Oriental costumes to adorn the Gym, it was the privilege of this class to decorate with the flags of the Allies.

At the end of the Gym hung "Old Glory", proud of his silken stars and stripes, and the flags of the Allies on either side. Immense flags hung from the balcony, and the cozy corners were cut off by flags.

The grand march was led by the Juniors, the guests following. At the close of the march the programs were handed out. These were white, with only one decoration, "The Flag", in the center. A very appropriate war supper was served by the Junior girls, after which dancing was resumed until the "wee sma' hours". The tired couples, upon leaving, voted this the most successful of all the Junior Proms.

RECEPTION TO NEW STUDENTS

A reception and informal dance was given for the benefit of the new students on the first Friday of the school year. Each one had a tag on, bearing his name and the class to which he belonged. Needless to say, everybody got acquainted with everybody else, and the dance amply served its purpose, that of renewing old friendships and forming new ones.

FRESHMAN DANCE

On the evening of October 17th the Freshmen entertained the "Uni" students at their "annual hop". Although the "Freshies" may be green in some things, they surely know how to entertain. "Pep" is the specialty of this jolly class, which was fully demonstrated on this gala night. Rah! Rah! Rah! "Freshies".

ALPHA TAU OMEGA FORMAL.

On the evening of January second the A. T. O. Fraternity gave a farewell dance in honor of the boys going to the Third Officers' Training Camp. This was also their formal dance, and the "Gym" was artistically decorated in the fraternity colors. A large fraternity symbol hung at one end of the hall. The coziest of cozy corners invited the guests to rest. Everyone enjoyed themselves immensely, and we are sure the boys when "over there" will remember their farewell dance.

SIGMA ALPHA EPSILON BALL

One of the most enjoyable dances of the season was given by the S. A. E. Fraternity. The floor was its very best, the music entrancing, and everyone caught the spirit of festivity. Punch was served in a daintily decorated booth. The end came far too soon—even though it was some beyond midnight—and the happy couples declared the evening delightfully spent and the S. A. E.'s royal hosts.

DELTA DELTA DELTA DANCE

The Tri Delts proved themselves excellent hostesses on this occasion. Forty couples were present, and the "Gym" took special pains to look its prettiest that evening. Flags of the nations formed the decorations. At one end of the "Gym" three large Deltas studded with electric lights—which peeped out from a background of pines—afforded the only light for the dreamy moonlight waltzes. Punch was served during the evening by a dainty little high school girl. Everyone felt his best, looked his best, and reported having had the best of times.

MERRIMENTS

Dorothy Downey in History, explaining a contract: "If I should make a contract with Sam, here, and then should decide that I didn't want to keep it, could I break it?"

Prep: "No, he'd sue you for breach of contract."

Mary A.: "We were down to see Judge Tidball this afternoon and after we had been there a while several visitors came in."

Beatrice D.: "Well, I'm glad we got there while he was empty."

Simp. at Hoyt Hall, open house day, looking at a picture of "Winged Victory": "Gosh, there's another fellow that's been playin' football!"

Babe closing cabinet meeting of Y. W. C. A.: "Let us repeat the Lord's Prayer. I think we have time for it."

Miss Abbot, in English I: "Mr. Essert, what do you have the most trouble with?"
Essert: "Cases."

Result of food lecture class—Katherine, when Esther asked if Greece is one of our allies: "No, grease is a fat."

At the Men's Commons and speaking of college subjects:

Miles: "That subject (psychology) will make a person nuts quicker than anything else I know of."

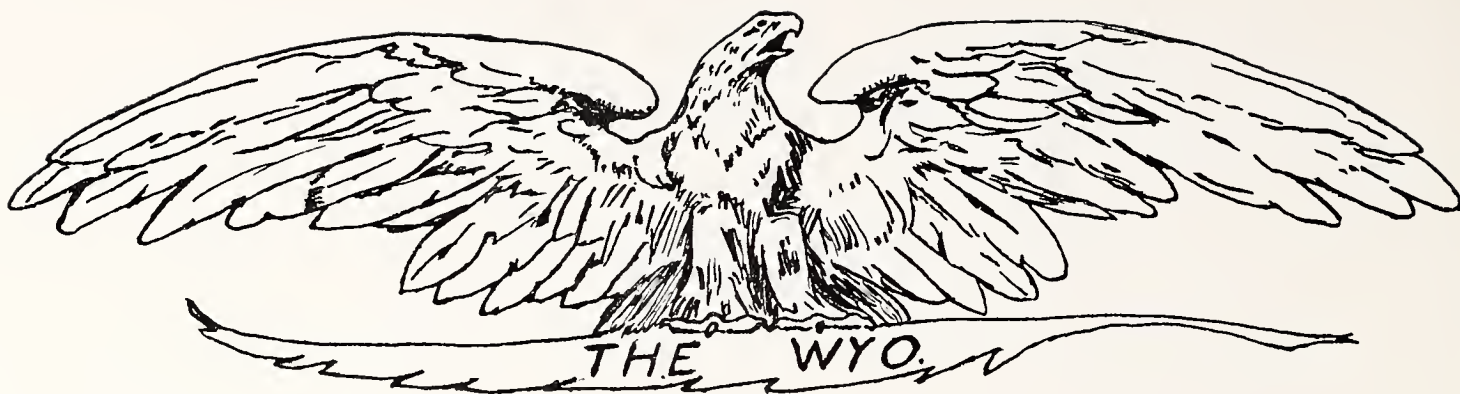

Sholl: "How many years of it did they give you?"

Erickson, sitting at the table between Sholl and Miles: "Ah, I am a rose between two thorns."

Penland: "Nix, rather a jackass between two bales of hay."

R. Sholl: "I have had all the agriculture I want."

Hartman: "The trouble with you, Russell, is that you never had it; you were exposed to it, but did not take it."

Dr. Martin in Bacteriology class: "Buchanan, what is a saprophyte?"

Buchanan, thinking of other things: "It s a kind of stone that rings are made of."

Albert Day at the musical given by Lucille Stevenson: "I want to hear that song, "One Fine Day," as it must mean me."

Sody: "Say, Cutie, isn't it funny that the roughnecks get the best girls?"

J. H.: "Now you are trying to flatter me."

Simp. (new case): "And believe me, she's some girl."

Denny: "Clever?"

Simp.: "Oh, very! She's got brains enough for two."

Denny: "Just the girl for you, then."

Betty: "Spike, stop using that dreadful language."

Spike: "Why, Shakespeare uses it."

Betty: "If that is who you room with, you better move. He is no fit companion for you."

D. Calling M.:
Central: "Number, please?"
D.: "Is Mary Osmond there?"

Young: "Gee, I've got an idea."
Smith: "Be good to it, kid; it's in a strange place."

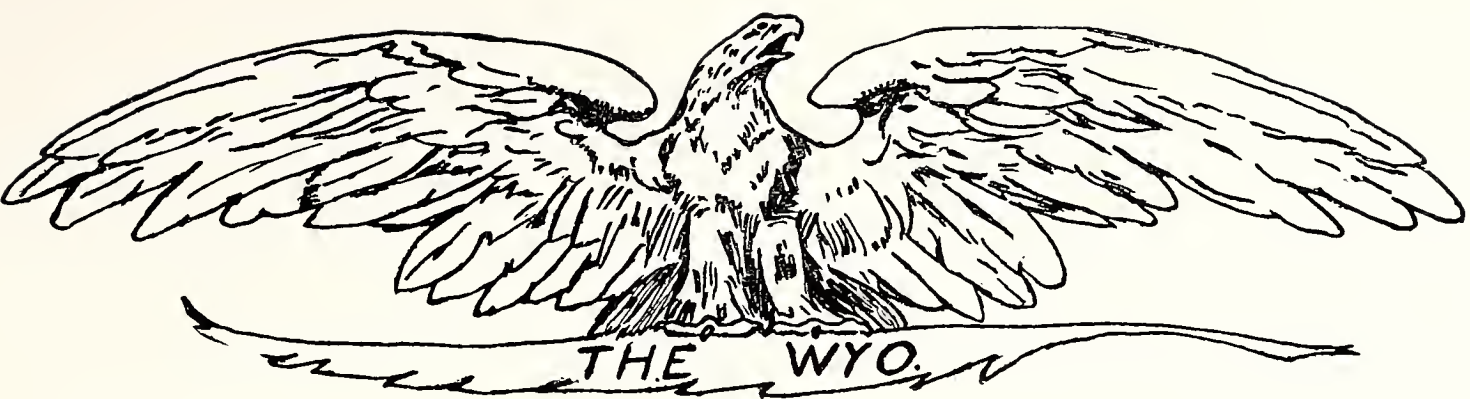

She: "What would you do if a girl offered you both cheeks to kiss?"
He: "I would hesitate a long time between the two."

Layman at the Connor Hotel:
Waiter: "Table d'hote, sir?"
Layman: "What's a tabledote?"
Waiter: "Course dinner, sir."
Layman: "Not for me; I git all the course grub elsewhere; when I get downtown I want something a bit fancy."

Prof. Berry in Shorthand class: "I wish you would pay a little attention."
Gladys: "I am paying as little as I can."

Fredonia: "What are you doing, Myrtle? Learning something?"
Myrtle: "No, I am just listening to you."

G.: "Sometimes you appear manly, and sometimes effeminate. Why is that?"
H.: "Well, you see, half of my ancestors were men and the other half women. I guess it is heredity."

Parker (soliloquizing): "It's such a pleasure to be alone, especially when your best girl is along."

C.: "He told me last night that I was the prettiest girl he had ever seen."

B.: "Oh, that's nothing; he said the same to me a year ago."

C.: "I know that, but as one grows older, one's taste improves, you know."

PROVERBS

Popular slang snatches no grades in English.

The tardy bell waits for no man.

Play and the Senior plays with you; study and you study alone.

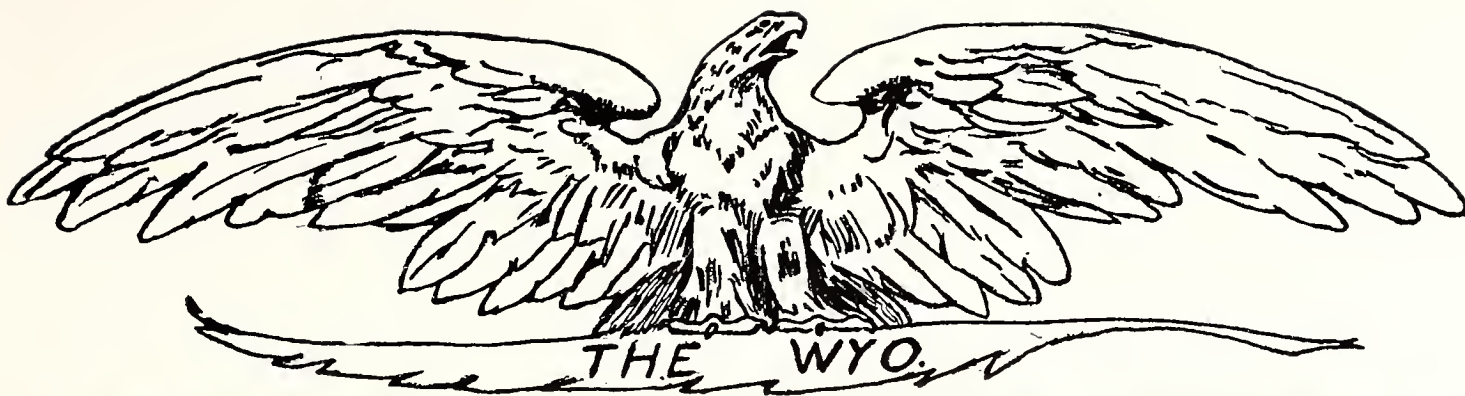

Wise men say little; it's easy to be wise.

A wandering brain gathers no knowledge.

Never pledge a student's ability by the amount of books he carries. (They may be some girl's.)

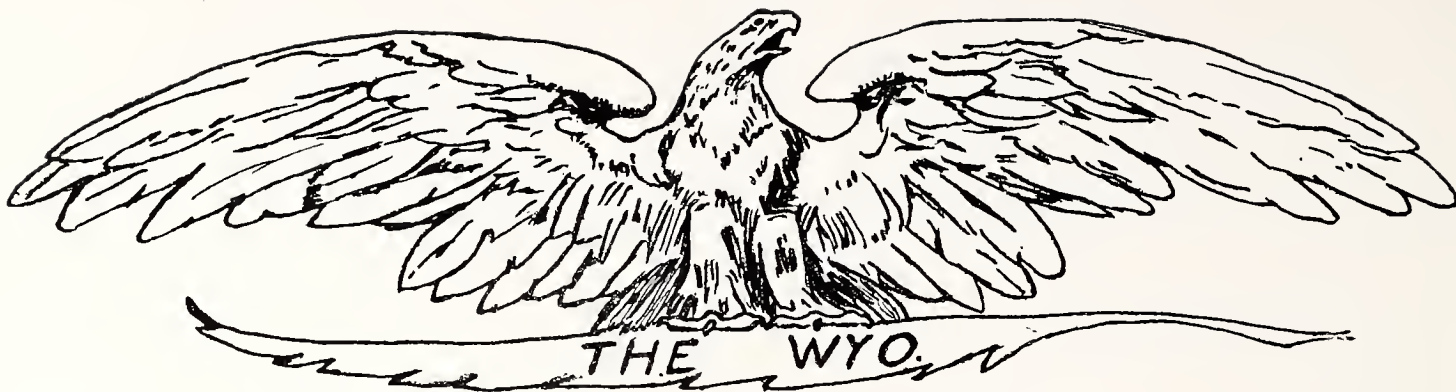

Freshman: "Look at 'em in all that mud! How will they ever get clean?"

Hicks: "What do you suppose the scrub team is for?"

JUST GIRLS

If serenading won't bring a girl out nowadays, try an auto horn.

She: "Isn't it strange that the length of a man's arm is equal to the circumference of a girl's waist?"

He: "Is that so? Let's get a string and see."

A Freshman happened to come from a town that had passed the boom stage. On his arrival at the University, he met a former resident of the town.

"Well, how is Rawlins?" asked the former resident.

Freshman: "Oh! It's an awful place now. Cullen, he dropped dead on the postoffice steps Saturday evening and they didn't find his body until Wednesday."

DO YOU KNOW—

That if you take long steps your shoes will last longer?

That you are not the whole cheese?

That the wisest are not highly educated?

That you have a bone in your head?

That two and two make five?

That Mildred is fond of a Bath?

That the world was not conquered in a day?

That all Cheese is not green?

That late to bed and early to rise, makes a man sleepy with heavy eyes? Ask Al.

That idleness will kill time quicker than occupation?

That A. Bell is very quiet?

That "All Fools' Day" is coming?

That electricity is created by friction—there's where the rub comes in?

Uni one-step: You go stealing along like you didn't have no bones in your legs, and had a Wyoming cactus stuck on your bare heel.

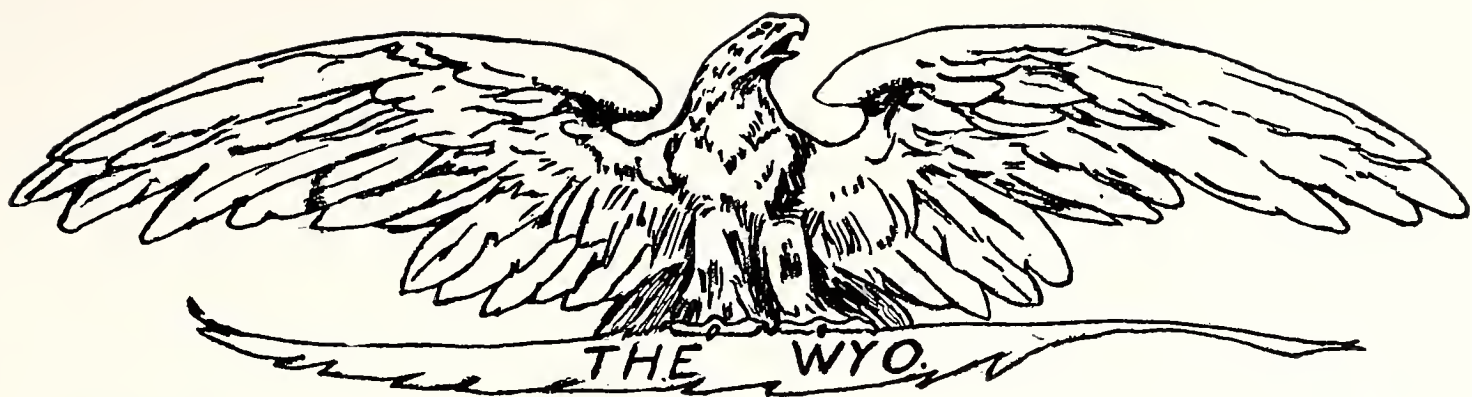

Prof. Ridgaway: "Can't you sit down on your chair; you will fall and break your head some day?"

Timm: "Ah, nothing would come from it."

Denny: "I was at Ringling Bros.' show last night."

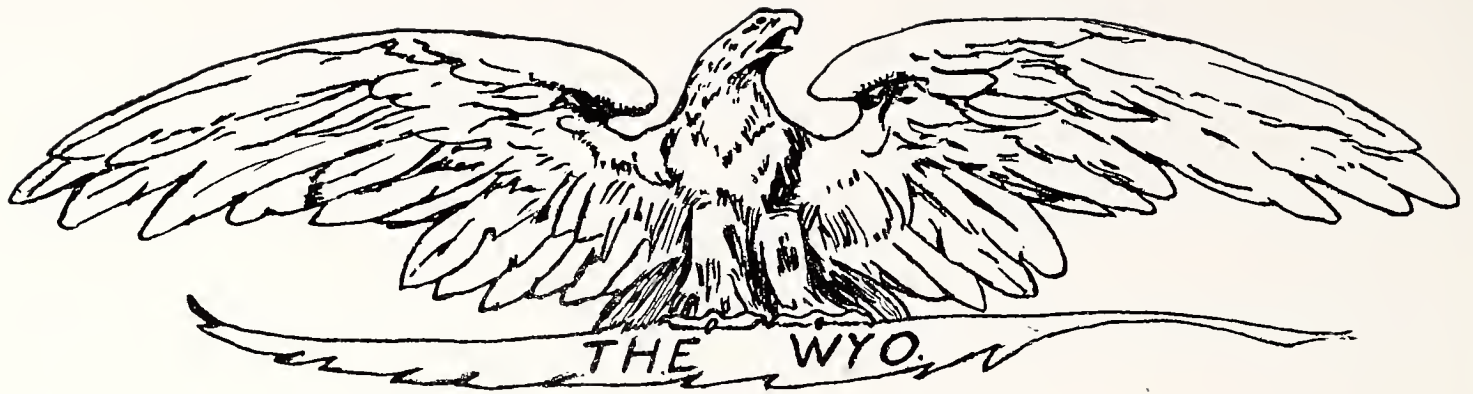

Farmer: "So was I."

Denny: "I was looking for you. What was the number of your cage?"

Cupid's Victims

"Sir, your daughter has promised to marry me."

"Well, don't come to me for sympathy. You might know that something would happen with you hanging around five nights a week."

Krueger: "Say, Burrage, what is the best way to strike a crank for an ad in the Annual?"

Burrage: "Strike him first with a club."

J. H.: "I wish Providence had made me a man."

U. T.: "Maybe he has, but you haven't found him yet."

"I vants some powder—vat you call? Vace powder."

"Mennen's?"

"No, no; veeman's! It is for mine vife."

Waterman (shaking his fountain pen): "You have no idea how easy these pens run."

Customer (applying a blotter to his pants leg): "I have an inkling."

Musical Query: "Another thing we do not understand about a grand opera orchestra is why all the fiddles finish at the same time when they are playing different tunes."

DIALOGUE ON CHRISTMAS EVE

Cady: "Gladys, will a long stocking hold all you want for Christmas?"

Gladys: "No, but a pair of socks will."

THE SAMARITAN

Owner: "Here, what are you doing? Don't you know you are not allowed to take fish out of this water?"

Penland (three hours without a bite): "I'm not taking them out, I'm feeding them."

NOT HIS BUNCH

A Sunday School teacher was quizzing her class of boys on the strength of their desire for righteousness. "All those who wish to go to Heaven," she said, "please stand."

All got to their feet but one small boy. "Why, Johnny," exclaimed the shocked teacher, "do you mean to say that you don't want to go to Heaven?"

"No, ma'am," replied Johnny promptly, "not if that bunch is going."

FREAKS

Prof. Soule: "Give the principal parts of the Latin verb 'occido'."

M. C.: "O kid, o kiddo, dearie, o kiss-um "

She: "I can't find my bathing suit anywhere."

He: "See if you have it on."

"Aren't some of these hats women wear absurd?"

"Yes, and yet when some people put them on they do look so appropriate."

A PAIR OF THEM

Father: He looks like a fool."

"But, Papa, he has asked me to marry him."

"He has? Well, don't ever tell me that I can't size up people."

Prof. Dale: "If I'm not mistaken, Miss Nash, I heard you talking during my lecture."

Miss Nash: "You are mistaken, Prof. Dale; I never talk in my sleep."

He: "I wonder how it is that I can never manage to be alone with you?"

She: "It must be an act of Providence."

AT CAMP PRESIDIO

Knight: "Come on, Craig, let's join the cavalry."

Craig: "No. Great change in me."

Knight: "Why?"

Craig: "When the general says retreat, I don't want a horse tied on to me."

SEVEN AGES OF MAN

First Age—Sees the earth.

Second Age—Wants it.

Third Age—Hustles to get it.

Fourth Age—Decides to be satisfied with one-half of it.

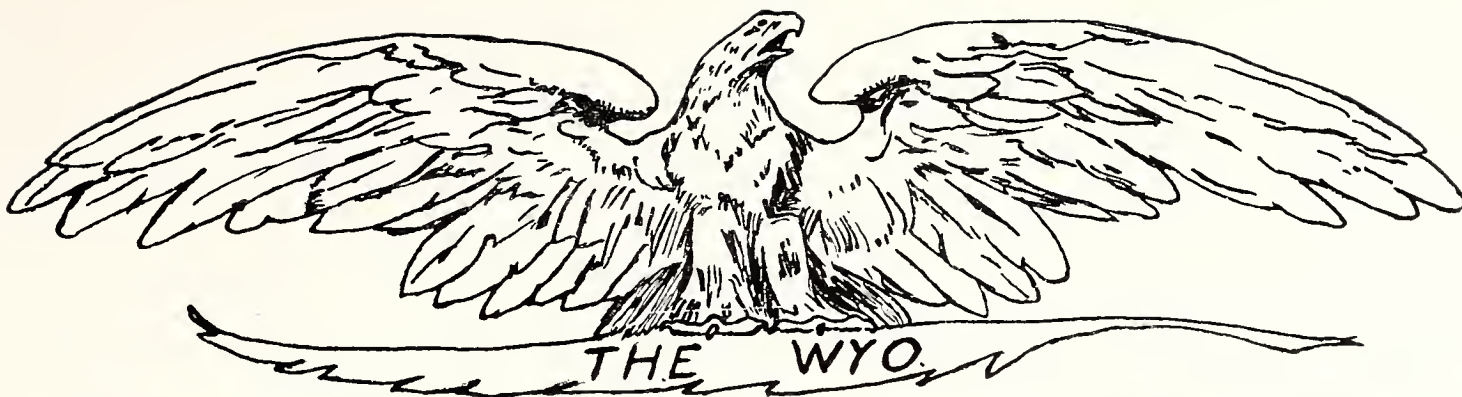

Fifth Age—Becomes still more moderate.

Sixth Age—Now content to possess a six-by-two strip of it.

Seventh Age—Gets the strip.

She: "Is Gertie Smithers a friend of yours?"

Friend: "Yes. What has she been saying about me?"

"Who led the Army in that recent expedition?"

"I did," replied General Tamale.

"I thought the attack was led by General Concarne."

"It was I that prevented great loss of life. He led them going forward, but I led them coming back."

Ingham: "What is the hardest work you ever did?"

Butler: "Getting my job at the Uni office, and the next hardest is the work keeping it from being taken away from me."

Mr. Newlywed: "Did you sew the button on my coat, Darling?"

Mrs. Newlywed: "No, love; I couldn't find the button, so I just sewed up the buttonhole."

Esther: "Oh, Farmer! to think of you coming to ask father's consent in such shabby clothes."

Farmer: "That's all right. I had one suit ruined."

Mr. Burrage: "Shall we talk or dance?"

Miss Whitcomb: "I'm very tired; let us dance."

B. B.: "Oh, sir! Catch that man! He wanted to kiss me."

A. M.: "That's all right. There will be another one along in a minute."

For any informaton about "lollypopping"—see Vass.

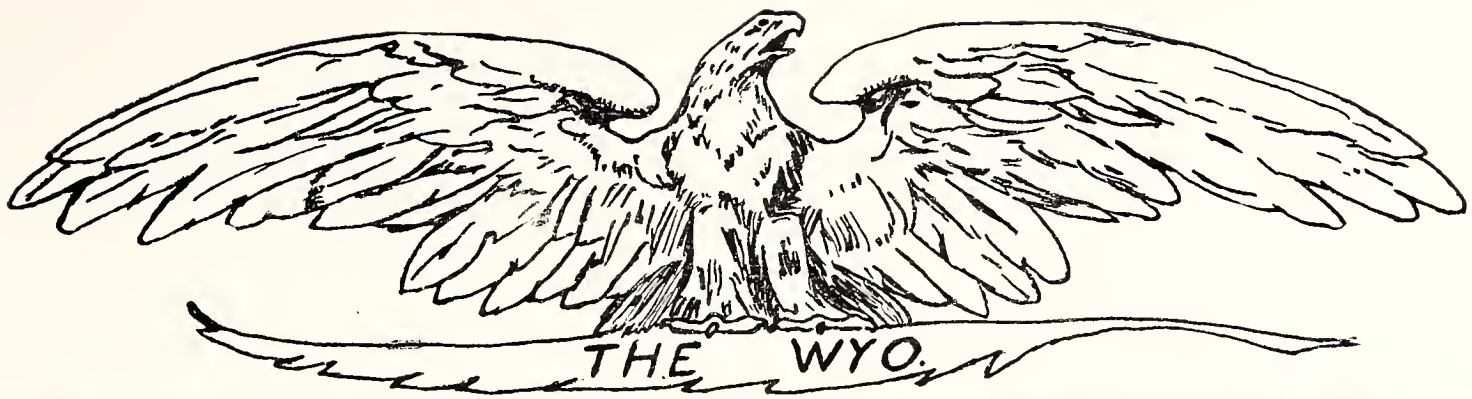

F. H. to Fritz: "You are all right in your place, but I've never seen you in your place yet."

When you cannot make ends meet, fill up the gap by standing in it yourself.

Coroner's Verdict: Inquest over man found dead in room hanged to bed post by suspenders—"Deceased came to his death by coming home full and mistaking himself for his pants."

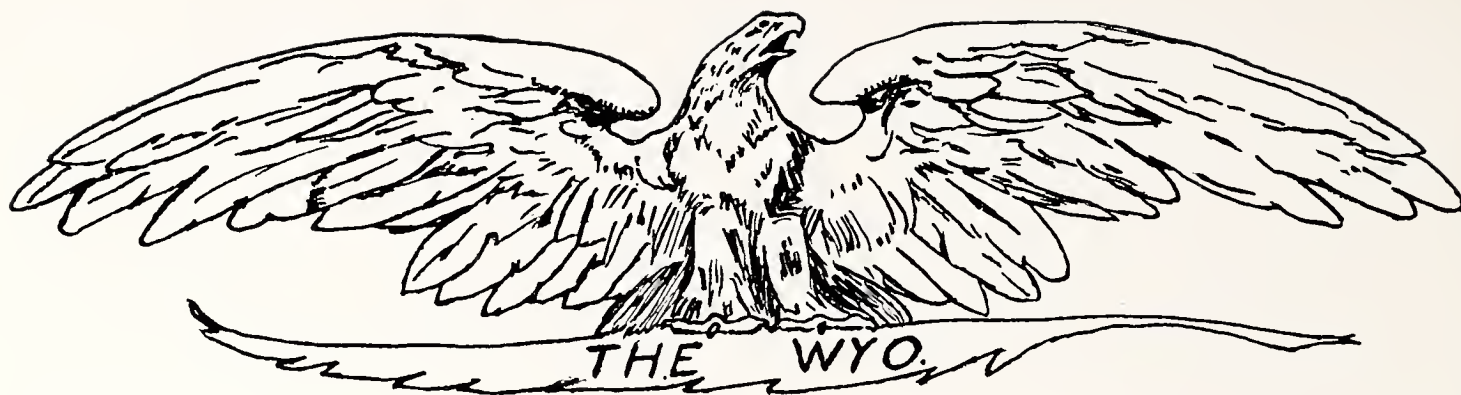

Doctor: "I don't like your heart action; you have had some trouble with angina pectoris."

Laird: "You may be right, doctor, but that was not her name."

Denny: "When I was a boy the doctor said if I didn't stop smoking cigarettes I would become feeble-minded."

Mary: "Well, why didn't you stop."

"Who was that tough looking chap I saw you with today, Hicks?"

"Be careful, Parker! That was my twin brother."

"By Jove, old chap, forgive me! I ought to have known."

Larson: "A fellow told me I looked like you."

Grant: "Where is he? I'd like to punch his head."

Larson: "I killed him."

Coolidge (applying for a position): "Have you an opening for me, sir?"

Old Gent: "Yes, there is one behind you. Shut it as you go out."

An Englishman, guest at one of our western hotels, went to the office and asked for a glass of ice water, which was given him. In a short time he repeated his errand, and quickly after made a third and fourth call with the same request. "Do you drink so much water?" asked the clerk.

"No," replied the guest, "the lace curtain in my room is on fire and I'm trying to put it out."

Special peculiarity of "Babe"—Smells her watch to tell time.

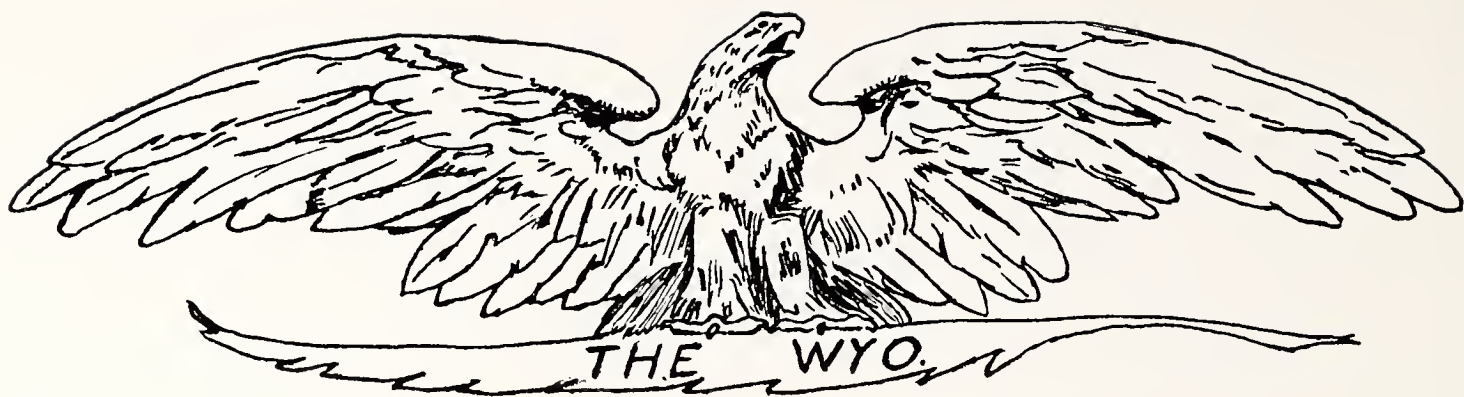

Jane: "So you have chosen a Farmer?"

Esther: "What have you to say? Isn't yours C. D.?"

Snaps.

For information for rules of etiquette when your girl from home arrives unexpectedly, and you have a steady date at the Uni, see Arthur Curtis Dennison.

Buck: "Miss Catherine—or Catherine, I mean—I've known you long enough to drop the 'Miss', haven't I?"

Catherine (fixing her lovely eyes upon him with a meaning gaze): "Yes, I think you have. What prefix do you wish to substitute?"

The Wise One: "Diogenes didn't even try to find an honest woman."—Columbia Jester.

Heigert (sighng): "Ah! If you only gave me the least hope, I——"

Effie: "I have been giving you the least I ever gave to any man."

C. D. M.: "I'm smoking a terrible lot of cigars lately."

Jane: "You're right, if that's one of them."

Fitz: "My plate is damp."

Mrs. Fitz: "Hush! That's your soup. They serve small portions in war times."

Simpson, on basketball trip, to Conductor: "Is this Noah's Ark full yet?"

Conductor: "Yes, all but the monkey; jump in."

Al Smith (making out his schedule): "I want to take commercial law. What time does it come?"

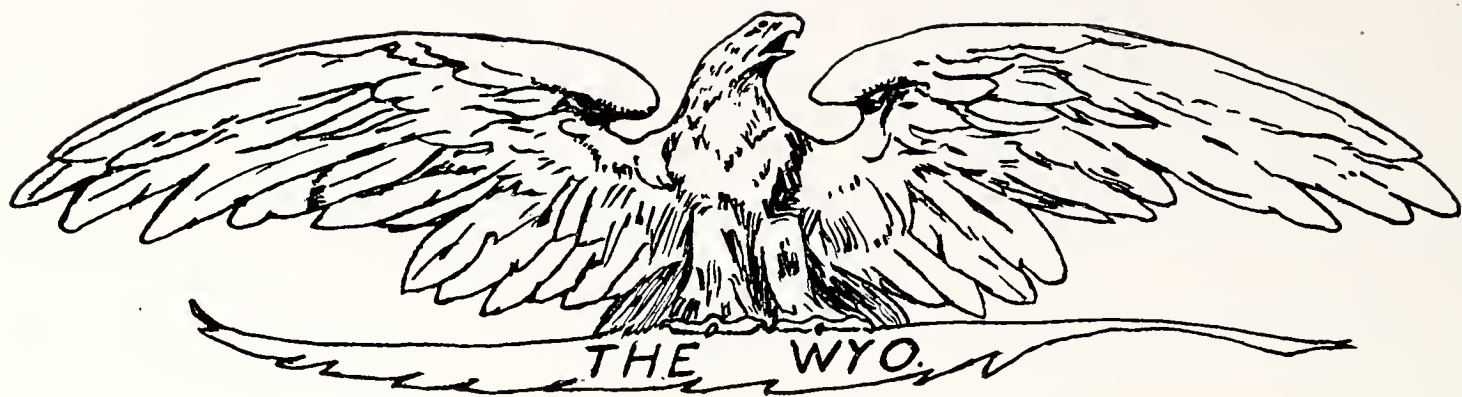

Prof. Hunton: "Eight o'clock."

Al: "Nothing doing, that's too early for me."
